Society Women Blamed for Raid

Pseudo English Nobleman Broke Into Society and He Brought His "Butter and Egg Men" Along To Help Entertain—Agents Spent $8,000.

New York, Dec. 23.—A society woman who believes in prohibition enforcement and some young women of society and stage who get a thrill out of Broadway night life share part of the responsibility for gloom that pervades 58 ordinarily scintillating night clubs and cabarets.

Federal agents claim that a prominent woman "whose name is in the social register and who felt it a civic duty to enforce the dry laws" introduced a pseudo English nobleman to some young women friends of Broadway and Park avenue. He, in turn, introduced other "butter and egg men" to the young women, who welcomed these escorts with apparently fat bank rolls and gladly introduced them into resorts of gaiety nearly as hard to enter as the 400 itself.

The agents spent $8,000, it is said at the office of Federal Attorney Emory R. Buckner, entertaining the young women and gathering evidence. Then, when injunctions and complaints in padlock proceedings had been served on the select 58, the agents quit Broadway for a health farm in Connecticut to recover from the effects of bad liquor.

Liquor "Terrible."

The liquor obtained in most places was "something terrible," in the opinion of the men who drank it for the government. At least 98 per cent was cut or adulterated, they claim, and some contained two per cent wood alcohol. Samples were obtained in 75 places, the agents declare, and at least 15 in addition to the 58 will be served with complaints and injunctions before Christmas.

"Can't Dry Up Broadway."

"If there hadn't been a leak somewhere we would have got more places," declares Chester P. Mills, prohibition administrator for New York. "But somebody got hold of the time of the raids and tipped off the proprietors."

Mr. Mills referred primarily to the fact that, in the absence of owners or managers, in many instances the injunctions were served upon other persons. The injunctions carry a jail sentence for violation, and federal agents believe some clubs will take advantage of the situation to sell liquor. Mr. Mills in fact, has some doubt as to the efficacy of raids.

"You can't dry up Broadway that way," he said.

"How can you dry it up?" he was asked.

"By building a great big bonfire," an assistant answered for him, but Mr. Mills replied, "only by the full cooperation of every man, woman and child, uniting to show their respect for the Constitution."

THIRD AMOUNT NEEDED FOR AIRPLANE CARRIERS.

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP).—With a total expenditure of $58,400,000 for construction of two airplane carriers, the Lexington and the Saratoga to date, a third supplemental appropriation of $3,500,000 will be needed for their completion by next July, Representative French, Republican, Idaho, of the house appropriations committee, has been informed.

The two ships were laid down in 1920 and 1921 and were originally designed as battle cruisers. They were, however, converted to airplane carriers, with a stipulated capacity of 88 planes each. At the time the contracts were let for their construction in 1917, a limit of cost for ships of their type was fixed at $23,000,000 each, but supplemental appropriations have been found necessary.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC AT FIRST DUTCH CHURCH

Sunday evening a special Christmas musical service will be given at the First Reformed Church. A most attractive program has been arranged consisting of selections from the Christmas cantata "Bethlehem" by Maunder. Among the numbers to be sung are the carol "Only a Little Village"; the wonderful choral march of the caravan across the desert and the charming lullaby, "Sleep Little Son, O My Treasure." The choir will be assisted at this service by Mr. La Tour and Mr. Clearwater, who will sing the offertory, a beautiful duet, "Watchman, What of the Night." Rondout Commandery No. 52, Knights Templar, will attend the service in a body.

XMAS GIFTS OF THREE MORE WEEKS TO LIVE

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 23 (AP).—Joe Burty, who was to have been hanged at dawn today, was given a Christmas gift of three more weeks of life as he was about to mount the scaffold.

All preparations had been made for the execution, the hangman had arrived, the jury had been subpoenaed and Burty had bidden farewell to his children, when word was received that a stay until January 12 had been granted.

Burty had been convicted of slaying Mrs. Nancy Cook.

4 Army Officers Killed in Crash

Head on Crash of Planes Proves Fatal To Four Army Officers, On The Eve of Their Departure Homeward For Holiday Visits.

Rantoul, Ill., Dec. 23 (AP).—Sorrow swept aside the spirit of the Christmas season today at Chanute Field, where four army officers plunged to death in a head-on crash of their planes.

The two ships, roaring through a fog that hung over the field, locked together at dusk yesterday and dropped 400 feet to the ground. Two of the victims were flying on the eve of departure homeward for holiday visits.

There was a brief flash of flame when the planes splintered against the earth, a mile from the hangars, but they did not catch fire and Captain Harold G. Foster of Chicago was found still alive in the twisted cockpit. He died before reaching a hospital.

First Lieutenants Henry W. Kunkel of Columbia, Mo., and Albert J. Clayton of Philadelphia, and Second Lieutenant Ralph W. Lawter of Huntington, W. Va., were killed. They were regular army pilots and Captain Foster, a World War veteran, was a reserve officer, completing a three months' duty tour.

Lieutenant Lawter had informed his mother at Huntington that he had obtained permission to fly an army plane to that place, with his bride of three months, for a Christmas visit, and at Philadelphia the parents of Lieutenant Clayton, a direct descendant of the first governor of Delaware, were preparing for his holiday arrival. He was unmarried.

Fliers Next Stop At Vera Cruz

Tampico, Mexico, Dec 23 (AP).—Vera Cruz, 260 miles down the coast, is the next stop for the American good will fliers. The time of their departure is dependent upon weather conditions, but Major H. A. Dargue, commander of the expedition said he hoped to get away today.

The five big amphibian planes arrived here from Brownsville, Texas, at 5:30 o'clock last night after bucking a 30-mile wind which made difficult their 253-mile flight down the coast.

The fliers took off from the waters of Laguna Madre, near Brownsville, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the start being delayed by fog. After crossing the international boundary they ran into a headwind which made flying difficulty.

They maneuvered over Tampico before coming down, to be greeted at the flying field by the American consul and a reception committee. The planes were escorted in by two Mexican aviators. The Mexicans' plane overturned on landing, injuring a mechanic slightly.

After an enthusiastic welcome the airmen were escorted into the city and later attended a banquet arranged in their honor.

Pile Driver Damaged by Fire

Fire, thought to have originated in the engine room, set fire to the large pile driver owned by M. Edgar Powley of this city, which was berthed on the Rondout creek flats off North street, causing an alarm of fire to be turned in from Box 17 about 8:45 o'clock Wednesday evening. The fire before it was brought under control, had badly damaged the housing on the pile driver.

Mr. Powley informed the fire department that steam had been up in the boiler on the pile driver and that he had visited the craft at 8 o'clock and found everything all right, leaving the vessel a few minutes later.

In order to get at the fire the fire department had to stretch considerable hose as the pile driver was moored some distance from the nearest dock, that of the Standard Oil Company.

The amount of the damage to the pile driver cannot be estimated until the craft is thoroughly examined.

Sinclair and Fall Must Stand Trial

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP).—Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall must stand trial for conspiracy in connection with the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve. Justice Jennings Bailey ruled in the District of Columbia supreme court today in refusing to quash the indictment against them.

Immediately after the ruling, the two defendants were arraigned and pleaded not guilty, and February 2 was set as the date for trial.

Justice Bailey in refusing to quash the indictment, ignored the plea that the government had wrongfully singled out the two men for unusual prosecution through the appointment, at the request of the senate, of special counsel to conduct the case.

$2,500 Verdict For Van Wagner

Jury Reaches Agreement at 1 A. M. in Auto Damage Suit in Which $20,000 Damages Were Claimed.

The jury in the Van Wagner-Schentzen negligence action, which was tried in the Supreme court before Judge Russell, finally came to an agreement at 1 o'clock this morning after being out since early in the afternoon. Judge Russell at 11 o'clock Wednesday night when the jury had not agreed, ordered the jury locked up until morning if they could not agree before. At 1 o'clock, however, they had reached a verdict awarding the plaintiff $2,500 in his suit to recover $20,000.

The suit was a hard fought contest and the big question revolved around the fact whether Mr. Van Wagner had sustained permanent serious injuries. Plaintiff claimed that he had been seriously and permanently injured through a fracture of the skull which resulted from the collision of his Chevrolet car and a large foreign car owned by Carl Schentzen. He contended that he had turned north on the Kingston-Phoenicia highway from the Cold Brook road and had proceeded north on the right side of the road a distance of 50 feet when the Schentsen car, traveling at 40 or 50 miles an hour, came south and crossing to the left of the road struck his car, overturning it and causing serious injury. Experts called by the plaintiff testified that Mr. Van Wagner had sustained permanent injuries and and would probably suffer sinking spells or fits.

This was denied by expert medical testimony introduced by the defendant. Mr. Schentzen's contention was that he had driven south at a moderate rate of speed and on approaching the intersection the horn had been sounded and that Mr. Van Wagner drove his car from the cross road directly in front of the defendant's machine and that the accident was unavoidable on the part of his chauffeur.

Judge John G. Van Etten, Andrew J. Cook and Judge Augustus Shufeldt appeared for the plaintiff, and Cleon B. Murray, Frederick G. Traver and Frank T. Murray appeared for the defendant.

Following the charge to the jury in the case, Judge Russell adjourned court for the term, subject to receiving the verdict of the jury. All jurors were excused for the term.

Explosion Kills Mother and Baby

Twelve One-Story Buildings Demolished and Several Persons Injured —Investigate Two Theories as to the Cause.

Baldwin, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP).—A terrific explosion of undetermined origin today demolished twelve one-story buildings on Pipe Line boulevard near the Long Island railroad station, caused the death of a mother and her baby and injured several persons.

The police investigated two theories as to the cause. The first and most generally believed was that gas from an escaping main caught fire and the second that a still in a cellar blew up.

Windows in business buildings over a wide area were shattered and the countryside for several miles around was rocked. The buildings caught fire, and help from Freeport and other surrounding towns was summoned. The fires were extinguished without further spread.

Mrs. Salvadore Acarbi, wife of a shoemaker, and her baby were burned to death. They lived in the rear of a store. The shoemaker was severely burned and cut by flying glass.

A pedestrian was hurled in the air by the force of the blast.

Five injured were taken to Nassau county hospital at Mineola. They were guards Heisenberg, Salvadore Acarbi and John Eiese, who were near the scene of the explosion, and Carl Crowler and Emil Morse, policemen, who were injured in rescue work.

All are likely to recover, hospital authorities said.

District Attorney Edwards of Nassau county learned that Acarbi last week received a letter threatening to blow up the Baldwin tavern, where his shop was located, if the cobbler did not cease a house to house canvass for trade. The tavern was torn almost board from board by the explosion. The district attorney said he had taken steps to obtain the letter, which he said Acarbi had turned over to postal authorities, and that every effort would be made to find the sender and discover if today's explosion was the fulfillment of the threat.

Two policemen from another town were hurt when the automobile in which they were hurrying to the scene struck a pole. A woman was severely injured when struck by the automobile of a fire chief who was driving in from a nearby village.

Fire Destroys Girls' School.

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 23 (AP).—Fire of undetermined origin early today destroyed the entire plant of Ely Court, an exclusive school for girls, with a loss estimated at between $100,000 and $150,000. Five buildings were burned. Nobody was injured. The school was closed for the holidays.

Launch Attack On Pacific Coast Rum Smuggling

A Hundred Persons Are Accused of Violating Dry Law In Wholesale Fashion on the Coast From Los Angeles to Seattle.

San Francisco, Dec. 23 (AP).—Waging its fight against Pacific coast liquor smuggling with added intensity, the government today launched a legal attack on a front extending from Los Angeles to Seattle, aimed directly at more than 100 persons who are accused of violating the law in wholesale fashion.

Federal grand juries representing almost simultaneously in Seattle and in the southern California metropolis brought indictments revealing alleged smuggling activities running well above the $1,000,000 mark in five months.

The Seattle grand jury had been investigating charges of liquor and graft activities in Snohmish county. It returned 64 indictments, 12 of which were kept secret. District Attorney Revolle would not make public the names of those involved, but said many city and county officials had been named. Court attaches said a total of 170 persons would be named in the true bills.

The Los Angeles indictments, involving 38 members of a smuggling combine which is alleged to have brought more than $1,000,000 worth of rum into southern California in the last five months, charge violation of the national tariff act. They name virtually all of the officers and stockholders of the Canadian Consolidated Exporters Corporation, Ltd., of Vancouver, B. C., and wealthy shipping men of Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Stiff Sentences For Mail Robbery

Sentences of More Than One Hundred Years Possible for Four Defendants Convicted in Wyoming—Other Defendants Face Shorter Terms.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Dec. 23 (AP).—Possible sentences of more than 100 years in federal prison today confronted four of the seven defendants convicted in United States district court here last night of taking currency and bonds valued at $320,000 from a Union Pacific mail train near Rock Springs, Wyo., August 13, last.

The others, one a woman, were found guilty of conspiracy charges, punishable by shorter terms. Jack Madigan, mail clerk on the train; Jack Kearns, Howard E. Barnett and John Kamariotis were convicted on all of the eleven counts in the robbery indictment. Theodore Thedore, Paul Sourloa and Edna Nagley face sentences for conspiracy.

Originally there were nine defendants but Raymond "Kid" Ellis and William F. Bradford entered pleas of guilty at the opening of the trial when confronted with evidence showing they aided in burying the loot, most of which was recovered by federal agents.

Nearly 75 witnesses testified. The government attempted to show that the robbery was an inside job. Ellis admitted this charge and declared that the idea was obtained by reading accounts of an eastern robbery which he decided was better than staging a "wild west" holdup.

The first five counts, consisting of robbery of the mails by placing the life of the mail clrek in jeopardy by the use of fire arms, carry sentences of 25 years flat. The next five counts, robbery of the mails with the jeopardy clause eliminated—are punishable with sentences of from one to ten years each. The last, of conspiracy, carries a maximum sentence of two years.

Judge T. Blake Kennedy granted defense counsel ten days in which to file motion for a new trial.

Supervisors Will Meet Wednesday

The adjourned meeting of the board of supervisors of Ulster county will be held at the supervisors' rooms, at the court house, at 4 p. m., Wednesday, December 29. Unfinished business outside of appropriations and levies will be transacted, among other things the receiving and adopting the report of the committee on distribution of grand jurors among the several towns of the county and city of Kingston. In the evening, after the session, the annual banquet of the Ulster County Supervisors' Association will be held at the Hotel Stuyvesant.

Notaries Public Appointed.

The following have been appointed notaries public in and for Ulster county by Governor Alfred E. Smith. William P. Glass, 45 Janet street, Helen E. Jones, 56 Franklin street, Elizabeth Kunst, 12 Adams street, Eva Stone, 66 Broadway, Kingston, M. Floyd Terwilliger, Ashokan.

Run Over by an Engine.

Olean, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP).—John J. Loftus, 59, conductor in charge of a freight train, was run over by an engine in the Port Allegany railroad yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad last night, his right foot being completely severed above the ankle.

Denies Killing Editor Mellett

Points to Steven Kascholk, State's Star Witness, As the Probable Slayer—Claims He Called Editor's Home Twice to Warn Him.

Courthouse, Canton, Ohio, Dec. 23 (AP).—Patrick Eugene McDermott, testifying today in his trial on a charge of murdering Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, denied any complicity in the crime and pointed to Steven Kascholk, the state's star witness, as the probable slayer. McDermott said he warned Mellett by telephone that three men were lying in ambush for him at his garage door.

McDermott was defiant throughout his cross-examination by Prosecutor C. B. McClintock and shouted he had been "framed." On two occasions, Judge Edwin W. Diehl was forced to reprimand McDermott for his retorts to McClintock. When he refused to divulge the name of a man with whom he said he had hidden for a while in Cleveland, the prosecution asked that he be held in contempt of court, but the ruling was deferred and McDermott repeatedly refused to divulge the name, declaring:

"I'm no 'rat'."

McDermott declared Kascholk induced him to go to Massillon last July to hunt for a job. He said he came to Canton from Massillon alone and was joined by Kascholk who said he had been "hired to slug an editor, Mellett." McDermott said he called Mellett's home twice to warn him.

He denied knowing Ben Rudner and Louis Mazer, his co-defendants, and he never had a gun while he was in Canton. He said he was in bed early on the night of the murder and left the next day when he received a telegram from R. L. Strang instructing him, in code, to "clear out." He said he presumed the telegram was from Kascholk who wanted him to clear out because he "knew too much."

McDermott said he went to Cleveland and gave a fictitious name because he was afraid he would get mixed up in the murder case because he had warned Mellett. He said he hid out after his sister told him he was being sought. He was concealed by Ben Nadel, for whom he had sold liquor, he admitted, and by Dan Pfaff, both of Cleveland.

Howard Intended To Kidnap Father

According To Mexican Newspapers In Account of Arrest of Young Howard and Two Companions—Trio Under Arrest.

Mexico City, Dec. 23 (AP).—Frustration of a plot to kidnap John F. Howard, former Haverhill, Mass., salad dressing manufacturer, is seen by the Mexico City newspapers in the arrest here of one of his sons, John C. Howard.

The police say young Howard, with two companions, entered Mexico a few days ago on a false passport and resisted arrest when Mexican secret service men located him. The trio are being held pending decision whether to deport them or try them on charges of improper entry. The other two are identified by the police as J. M. Crocker and Carl Gilroy. Their home addresses are not known here.

According to newspapers, John intended to kidnap his father and carry him back to Haverhill in an automobile with Crocker and Gilroy as guards. The elder Howard left his first wife at Haverhill some months ago, came to Mexico, secured a divorce, and remarried. He was followed here by his sons, John C. and Albert. They brought charges of bigamy and perjury against their father in connection with the divorce and second marriage. When these charges were dismissed by the Mexican courts, the sons returned to the United States, and the revelation, with his arrest, that one of them was again in the Mexican Capital came as a general surprise.

LARGEST BELL IN MEMORY OF WANAMAKER

Philadelphia, Dec. 23 (AP).—The curious crowds that usually watch riggers hoist safes into the upper floors of buildings had something to look at today when they saw the largest bell in the Western Hemisphere raised 200 feet to the roof of the Wanamaker department store.

The bell, made in England, was the heaviest ever cast in that country. It is 9 feet six inches in diameter, 7 feet 3 inches high and weighs 17¾ tons. Under favorable conditions, it is said, the bell can be heard thirty miles.

The bell, to be known as the Founder's Bell, was placed in a specially built tower on the roof in commemoration of John Wanamaker, founder of the Wanamaker business, who died in 1922. It will strike hourly and will be tolled on anniversaries and on special occasions.

Compensation Hearings Here.

Referee John J. Burns of the state industrial board will hear claims for compensation at the court house, this city, on January 3, 14 and 24.

Rather Play Santa Than Be Reunited

Chicago Women Decline Offer To Have Husbands Released from House of Correction for Failure to Pay Alimony.

Chicago, Dec. 23 (AP).—A woman can play Santa Claus as well as a man, Mrs. Mary Alban, 23, maintained when she declined the offer of her erring husband, now serving a jail sentence for non support, as a Christmas present.

"This is a revelation to me," said Municipal Judge Francis Borelli, when forty-three other wives, whose husbands are members of the "alimony club" in the House of Correction, likewise turned down the Christmas release proffer, through which the court expected many reconciliations.

Only ten of the fifty-four wives summoned to the court of domestic relations yesterday to hear the release offer, accepted, and some of these were not more than lukewarm to the idea.

"I had hoped that after their husbands had been removed to the Bridewell for a period, and their wives had a few peaceful moments in quiet contemplation that we could effect a reconciliation at the time when peace and good will are supposed to prevail," the judge continued.

He expressed the hope, however, that those who accepted his offer would "profit happily by it."

Mrs. Alban, who appeared with her twenty months' old baby in her arms, said her husband never had supported her, and when a court attendant suggested that the baby would have no Santa Claus she replied with spirit: "I'll be his Santa Claus." She insisted she did not want her husband back.

Most of the "alimony club" members are in for six months.

Crossing Frog To Be Replaced

West Shore Railroad Rips Up Planking on Broadway Crossing—New Frog Ordered But Not Here Yet.

This morning the West Shore Railroad had a force of laborers busy ripping up the planking on the Broadway crossing preparatory to relaying the trolley crossing frog, which had been torn up some time ago by the railroad.

It was stated at the office of the West Shore Railroad that the frog had not been received as yet, but would be relaid when it arrived.

In November the state public service commission handed down an order directing the West Shore Railroad to relay the crossing frog so that trolley cars could use the Broadway crossing, and also allowing trolley cars to cross the crossing, provided the city of Kingston withdrew its opposition.

At the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening the city withdrew its opposition to the use of the crossing by a vote of 6 to 5.

The trolley road, however, will not be able to use the Broadway crossing until the frog has been replaced.

Coming Changes In County Office

There has been considerable speculation of late as to who would make up the staff of Arthur Rice when he becomes sheriff of Ulster county on January first. The appointment of William S. Doyle of Ellenville as under sheriff was made certain some time ago when Mr. Doyle resigned from the office which he held with the Ulster County Agricultural Society in order to devote himself to the duties of under sheriff.

Several names have been mentioned as the possible appointees for the positions of night jailor and janitor, day jailor and assistant janitor. The position of night jailor and janitor, which has been held for the past twenty years by Seth Jocelyn, will undoubtedly go to Jacob V. Merrihew; Grant Smith is scheduled to succeed Robert B. Ivory as day jailor and Ralph Constable appears to be the choice for the position of assistant janitor now held by Anderson V. Ellsworth.

Fitzgerald May Be New Policeman

This evening the board of police commissioners will hold a special meeting for the purpose of appointing a policeman to the force. The civil service board has furnished the police board with a list of three names from which to make the appointment. Those on the list are Frank Uudenhausen of 560 Wilbur avenue, Hubert Coffey of 40 Steele street and Walter Fitzgerald of 47 West Union street.

It is expected that the police board will appoint Fitzgerald to the job. Some time ago while in the employ of Everett & Treadwell he was injured while at work. Later when he recovered his health and strength he became a taxi driver and of late has been employed on the Kingston line by the trolley road.

Fans Support Speaker and Cobb

Detroit Fans Endorse Cobb and Cleveland Fandom Rally Behind Speaker—Landis Criticized for His Sensationalism.

Chicago, Dec. 23 (AP).—Detroit, which less than two years ago gave Ty Cobb a civic testimonial banquet and presented him with a $1,000 gift paid for from the treasury of the city itself, has risen as one man to the defense of its baseball idol against charges of crookedness in baseball.

Cleveland has written the same positive endorsement across the record of Tris Speaker, whose name has been coupled with Cobb's and with that of "Smokey Joe" Wood, former Cleveland pitcher, in one of baseball's most astounding episodes.

Detroit fandom for years applauded and liked the southpaw pitching of Hubert (Dutch) Leonard, author of the charges that now cloud the names of two of the game's greatest centerfielders. By the same token, a large portion of Detroit fans were openly critical of Ty Cobb as a manager. Now that the two have come in conflict over a matter involving the integrity of one of them, and of the game itself, Detroit has been sure and swift in its endorsement of Cobb.

Two Detroit recorder's court judges —Guy A. Miller and Edward J. Jefferies—have coupled their public endorsement of Cobb with sharp criticism of Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis for making public what they feel are calumnious charges.

The commissioner's action is described by Judge Miller as "indefensible, as in line with his usual sensationalism."

Judge Jefferies believes Commissioner Landis "has gone out of his way to destroy two of the greatest idols of the day," and that Landis "has fouled his own nest in his desire for sensationalism." He goes further, predicting that the "reaction to baseball if this man continues muckraking will destroy the game."

Fans were just as ready to rally behind Speaker, and the phone in his Cleveland home today continued to ring in the messages of assurance of his integrity. Speaker in a statement asked the public to base their opinion on him on "twenty years of hard honest effort for the game I have loved," rather than take "the statement of a disgruntled player who has refused to meet me face to face."

In Cobb's home town, Augusta, Ga., the city council at a special indignation meeting last night passed a resolution asserting "complete confidence in the honesty, probity and integrity of Tyrus Raymond Cobb." The coupling of Cobb with any plan to fix a baseball game, the resolution said, "is conspiracy to defame his good name."

Some of the participants in that game in September, 1919, in which Detroit defeated Cleveland, 9 to 5, have been no less positive than the Augusta council in their expressions of belief in the integrity of Speaker and Cobb.

Athletic officials at Yale University, where Joe Wood is baseball coach with another year of his contract to run, expect to listen to his story after the holidays. Wood will be asked to explain his letter to Leonard in which he spoke of a wager on the "fixed" game.

PRESENT WILSON MEDAL TO ELIHU ROOT

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—The Woodrow Wilson award medal, 10 inches in diameter, will be presented to Elihu Root at the Hotel Astor on Tuesday when he receives the $25,000 cash award of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation in recognition of his part in the creation of the permanent court of international justice.

The medal was designed by Ivan Mestrovich, Yugo Slav sculptor, and shows a symbolical figure of Woodrow Wilson conveying a sense of what Mestrovich believes to have been Wilson's chief characteristics —wisdom, justice and love of humanity. The medal is of bronze.

66 YEARS-OLD SWIMMER WILL ENTER WRIGLEY RACE

Santa Monica, Calif., Dec. 23 (AP). —Mrs. Anne E. Van Skike, 66 years old of Santa Monica, who each year celebrates her birthday with a ten mile or longer swim in the Pacific ocean today announced her intention of participating in the $40,000 Wrigley Marathon channel swim next month.

For the last five years Mrs. Van Skike has been engaging in long distance swims in the Pacific. A sixteen mile swim, the time of which was 4 hours and 15 minutes was her last birthday celebration.

SANTA CLAUS AT WHITE EAGLE HALL

Santa Claus will make a visit at the White Eagle Hall on Delaware avenue, Christmas afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Santa will be met by the White Eagle Band. An entertainment will be given by the children of members of the Sacred Heart Society. Santa will give a package to each little girl and boy. Music will be furnished by the White Eagle Band. All are welcome.

ROMANCE OF SEA RIVALS FICTION

Canadian Fireman Who Saved Titanic Babe Becomes Heir to Millions.

Toronto, Ont.—Heir to $2,000,000 and guardian of a girl of fourteen whom as an infant he saved when the Titanic went down in 1912 is the happy fate which, according to his own story, has befallen John James, a fireman employed in one of Toronto's pumping stations. A few days ago James left for England for the purpose, he said, of concluding legal formalities.

Among John James' associates his story is accepted at its face value, for they have known him for many years as a trustworthy workman and a man of his word. Among others there is skepticism pending his return from England with his millions and his ward.

John James' story in any case stands unrivaled among romances of the sea. Here it is in his own words:

"I had shipped on the Titanic as a seaman under the name of John Jones. I did not use my own name because of a previous disagreement at the company's employment office.

"When the vessel struck the 'growler' I took my station beside No. 8 boat.

Receives Charge of Baby.

"It was as the passengers were getting into the boat that I received charge of the baby, who has been responsible for the events which have happened recently.

"A number of women had got into the boat. I remember they included Mrs. J. J. Astor and Lady Rothe, when a woman carrying a baby in her arms came forward. Her husband and two other little children were with her. She first handed me the child and then, on learning that her husband could not accompany her, refused to go herself. The other two children stayed with their mother, and I was handed a sum of money and an address in London, with instructions that should anything happen I was to deliver the child to that address. I was told I was keeping the baby for extra precaution. None of us dreamed for a moment the Titanic would sink.

"We lowered away and pulled off from the doomed vessel.

"Each hour I made each passenger take a teaspoonful of rum and I took some myself. It kept us alive, for the cold, following the proximity of the icebergs, was intense and I was dressed only in canvas breeches and jersey. I had not even shoes on. I had stowed the baby, wrapped up in my oilskins, in the boat's locker. Now and again it would cry and I moistened its lips with a little rum and water. That, in my opinion, kept it alive.

Picked Up by the Carpathia.

"It was terrible when the passengers in the boat realized the giant vessel was gone. The tragedy has been sufficiently written about, and it is enough for me to say that the next morning we were picked up by the Carpathia and that the baby was still safe and sound.

"On the Carpathia they tried to take the child from me, but I had given my word to deliver it to its grandparents and I meant to keep it. The child was well cared for, of course, and after we reached New York I took it ashore with me and then back to England, where I was met by the grandparents at Liverpool and handed her over to them. At the time I was well compensated financially, and after the Washington and Southampton inquiries, at both of which I gave evidence, I returned to my calling on the sea.

"The grandparents would write me and send me money on the Titanic's anniversary, but it was not until the war that I saw them again. It was about six years after the Titanic's sinking that I was in hospital wounded. When I was discharged I was given a fortnight's leave and I went to spend it in London in the Union Jack club. I had nothing to do there so I thought I would call for the first time on the baby's grandparents, for I had been often invited when in London to do so.

Surprised at Size of Home.

"I went down by bus and, of course, I was wearing my sailor's uniform. When I arrived at the address I was surprised at the size and imposing front of the house I had come to visit. Mustering up my courage I rang the bell and when the door was opened by a butler asked to see the lady of the house. He viewed me with apparent doubt and then remarked that the lady of the house was not at home.

"'Take her my name,' I said. 'I know she will see me.'

"He was about to close the door when a little girl walked from a room to the left of the great hall across it. She was dressed in white, and as she crossed she saw me. She stopped and looked at me for a long moment.

"'What is your name?' she asked me, and I told her.

"'Martin,' she said, 'kindly let the gentleman in. I know him and grandmother will see him.'

"I was taken inside, where an old lady was sitting reading. I introduced myself and to my consternation she kissed me.

"'Send for Mrs. Martin,' she ordered the butler. 'Mr. James will stay with me.'

Spends Fortnight at House.

"I demurred, but she insisted and the whole of my fortnight's leave was spent in that wonderful house. Each day we would drive to the theater or some entertainment or other, while I met many people at her home. You can guess I was not entirely comfortable, but I gradually got used to the new luxury and my leave expired almost before it had begun, so to speak. Then I went back to the sea again. After the war, with £500 the old lady game me, I came to Canada and started my new life here."

Now, according to James, the grandmother is dead and he has been notified that he must assume guardianship of the child and is heir to an estate that is valued at $2,000,000.

An embarrassing change in his mode of life is entailed but James thinks he can best bridge the gulf by becoming a gentleman farmer, an old ambition with him.

In any case, he says, he will not abandon Canada or his friends at the city hall and elsewhere in Toronto

Three Adrift 4 Days Saved by Motorboat

New York.—A Southern Pacific liner, running between New York and New Orleans, stopped at quarantine for the first time in its 20 years of coastwise service because it picked up three men adrift in a motorboat off Miami. The presence of the men made it necessary for the liner to pass quarantine examination.

The three men, who gave their names as John Morey, Harry Switz and Roy Palmer, all of Miami, told Capt. Charles P. Maxson they were returning from Nassau when their motor went dead.

For four days they drifted, with many an anxious moment, as they saw passing vessels disregard their distress signals. For two days and nights they were without food or water, as the speedboat usually made the trip from Nassau to Miami in five hours, and was only lightly provisioned.

The liner sighted the disabled boat and rescued the men ten miles off the Hillsboro light, midway between Palm Beach and Miami.

Diamond "Kings" Fear Diggers' Price Cut

London.—Diamonds soon will be as common as artificial pearls if the present unrestricted output from alluvial diggings continues, in the opinion of the South African diamond magnates, says a dispatch to the Daily Express from Capetown.

The correspondent says the diamond mine owners are perturbed over the increasing output of stones from the alluvial diggings, where individual seekers are finding plenty of diamonds and putting them on the market at prices below those charged by the De Beers syndicate.

Solomon B. Joel, Sir Ernest Oppenheimer and Sir Abe Bailey, mine owners, have arrived in Capetown from England with the hope of inducing the South African government to limit the alluvial output. Mr. Joel is a director of the De Beers Consolidated mines. He is a nephew of the late Barney Barnato, a poor Jewish peddler who went to South Africa in the early '70s, and made a large fortune in diamond and gold mines.

Salted Whales' Tails Delicacy to Japanese

Tacoma, Wash.—Over in Japan there is no worry over the shortage of turkeys for the holiday season for during the last week 170,000 pounds of salted whales' tails have been exported to that country. The whale tails, in great demand there, came from the various whaling stations on the north Pacific Alaskan coast and represent a value of over $51,000, whereas a few years ago they were discarded or worked over into low-grade fertilizer.

Language of Birds

The language of birds is of three different types, a lecturer recently told the Royal Institute of London. There are the alarm notes, call notes and the song. The alarm notes [illegible] did not carry so far as the song, but were often very piercing, he said. The song was built up of notes rapidly put together and the call notes were the call of the helpless young asking for their parents or of birds when mating.

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

The Neck-Line Is No Longer Simply Round, a la Bateau, But May Be Rounded, Deeply Pointed, or—Newest of All—Square.

Paris—Having firmly and unquestionably established the V neck-line, not only for evening but for day wear, Paris has set about introducing the square neck, and it must be admitted that it is in fair way of becoming a formidable rival to the V. There are several square-cut frocks which have the opening bordered with self fabric, with the upper edges bowed to one side. This line deserves every consideration, as it lends a new touch.

For evening, Paris leans toward a deep C or horse shoe back decolletage, no matter what shape it may assume in the front. The usual tendency is to couple such a back with a curving front line. When the front is cut in a V, the back has a tendency to echo the idea, or to be cut high, that is, rounded to the base of the neck.

Lobouvier Presents a Daytime Frock of Beige Crepe Roma Posed Over a Satin Foundation in Matching Shade. The Selvedge is Used for the Collar and Bow and Also for the Bands That Indicate the Waist-line. Godets Placed at One Side of the Skirt Provide Fulness.

One of the most effective, if rather daring models of the season is credited to Vionnet. It is made on princess lines plus a front godet, and has a deep V to the waist-line, back and front, this being filled in with a layer of flesh tulle...

An interesting commentary on fringe was voiced by one of the haute couture who said that while fringe, according to some reports, was passe in America, it was still very much liked in Paris. Certainly, one can go nowhere without seeing several versions of the fringed dress, in white, black, or color, of which the most popuar is pink.

In the vein of comparison, one finds not only more fringed dresses in Paris than in New York, but decidedly more spangled or pailletted ones. Spangles are important, rather more in silver or gold than in colors, and certainly more in color than in black. Brilliant sapphire blue and glowing ruby red spangled dresses are warranted not to pass unnoticed.

THE TASTY PINEAPPLE

For appealing salads, tasty desserts, tempting cocktails and delicious drinks, there is nothing quite so satisfying as the pineapple.

A few slices of minced pineapple added to a cabbage salad take it quite out of the ordinary class.

Fruit Tart.—Bake a rich pastry crust until brown. One-half hour before serving fill the shell with canned pineapple, either crushed or shredded. Pour over a thick boiled custard, flavored with a bit of vanilla. Place a meringue on top and brown lightly, or small baked pastry stars with a few marshmallows may be used, browning them in the oven.

Pineapple Cake.—Take one-half cupful of butter, cream, and add two cupfuls of sugar, then the well-beaten yolks of four eggs. Mix well two and one-fourth cupfuls of flour with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder; add alternately with one cupful of milk and flavoring to taste. When well blended fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in three layers in a moderate oven and fill with Pineapple Filling.—Take one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of boiling water and cook until it threads. Pour gradually on a well-beaten egg white. Beat until thick and of the right consistency to spread. Drain the juice from a can of crushed pineapple, spread over the cake, then cover with the boiled frosting.

Pineapple Marmalade.—Take one cupful of pineapple, three oranges sliced very thin, one lemon also thinly sliced, two cupfuls of sugar and five cupfuls of water. Cover the lemon and oranges with water and let them stand over night; in the morning cook for two hours, until very tender, then add the sugar and cook an hour longer; then add the pineapple the last half hour. This recipe makes six glasses of marmalade.

Quotations Garbled

Lord Brooke wrote more than three hundred years ago, "And out of minde as soon as out of sight," which is now reversed in "Out of sight is out of mind." "She and comparisons are odious," wrote Dr. John Donne, and he is variously interpreted. Even Ben Jonson, speaking of Shakespeare's "small Latin and less Greek," has "little" substituted for "small." Milton's "human face divine" gets "form" for face, and "all" is adopted for "neighboring" in the famous "the cynosure of neighboring eyes." "The busy hum of men" in the same poet's "L'Allegro" has "haunts" for "hum."

Cecile Sorel, French Actress, Comments Favorably on Front Drapes and Trains—Fur-Lined Coats for Evening and Daytime Included in Her Wardrobe.

"Women should be feminine in manner and dress," is the opinion expressed by Mme. Cecile Sorel, the French actress, in her apartment at the Ambassador Hotel in New York. Her wardrobe, executed by Callot, carries out her beliefs adequately, interpreting her love of the elegant and luxurious in terms of rich metal brocades, sumptuous furs, and diaphanous combinations of tulle and ostrich or chiffon and ostrich.

Among Mme. Sorel's evening gowns are many that bear a resemblance to her DuBarry costumes, so courtly are the trains and the combinations of brocades, laces, and jeweled trimmings. The French artist professed her preference for the fashions of the Louis XIV and XV periods, and admitted that she would rather have lived during those eras than in the present day.

Stage Costumes by Antoinette.

Her costumes for "La Maitresse du Roi," in which she appears with Du Barry's own furniture, brought over by her for that purpose, are designed by Antoinette. Voluminous skirts of brocades and moire and jeweled embroideries on velvets are much in evidence and there is one costume trimmed with leopard and worn with a leopard head-dress.

Modified versions of these enormous skirts and rich trains are found in several of the modern evening gowns designed by Callot. In almost every instance the hem is considerably higher in front and there is an upward movement to the bodice usually achieved by slight draping. One model of this type is designed in rose and gold moire trimmed with metal lace, and there is an afternoon gown of green brocade with a green gold lace flounce that resolves itself into a train in back. When straight capes are noted, they are generally softened by flowing, sleeveless coats of chiffon.

Mme. Sorel's evening wraps reveal a contrast between fur-lined types of luxurious appeal and velvets of classic simplicity. There is a red velvet cape, very circular in cut, lined with chinchilla and a silver lame coat is lined and collared in white fur. Two plain velvet capes are noted, one wrapped around like a Roman toga.

Fur-Lined Coat in Evidence.

The fur-lined coat is also in evidence among the actress's daytime costumes. Fur coats are worn with cloth dresses in ensemble fashion and there are a few fur toques in evidence to accompany these costumes.

Jewelry is another note of elegance that Mme. Sorel considers essential to the truly feminine costume. She wore two ropes of pearls and another necklace of diamonds and pearls on which hung an enormous pear-shaped emerald, the gift of her husband, the Count de Segur. Her earrings were of diamonds with large pearl drops, and her rings were of black and white pearls.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 23, 1926.

That man found carrying $88 in his sock is a reminder that not even the most furious "equal rights" campaign can now make it possible for any woman to do the same undetected.

We read of a United States Senator who said that during the thirty years of his service at Washington he had heard many speeches that changed his convictions, but he had never heard one that changed his vote. "Politics" personified.

The Prohibition Administrator for New York proposes that there be complete enforcement for one year and then, at the next Presidential election, let the people say what is to be done next. Granting complete enforcement to be possible, it might indeed smoke out the hosts who now vote dry and drink wet.

General Andrews has been sharply criticized for asking Congress to appropriate half a million dollars to support a spy service—to pay agents who, as the protest puts it, "will peep through key holes, draw aside curtains and betray friends." But Gen. Andrews can logically point to the existing law. The Government can not live up to the law and regulate the private conduct of the American people without the sleepless activity of just such an army of spies for which Gen. Andrews asked. The propriety, the public toleration in a supposedly free country, of such a far-reaching spy system—suggestive of the methods of the Spanish Inquisition—is, of course, quite another matter.

BOSS OF BASEBALL.

When Judge Landis left the law courts and became the "czar of baseball" at a salary of $50,000 the comment widely partook of the nature of jest. Now that he is elected to a second term of seven years at a salary of $65,000 a year, there will be general agreement that it is a sober business matter. Evidently the "fiery white-haired ruler of the diamond" is both efficient and revered, is really allowed to boss and does so in a way to earn his pay. It is stated that he has had some stormy experiences with rebels, but has come out of them stronger than ever. Curiosity as to what are his duties and what he accomplishes finds a considerable measure of satisfaction in the following account: "He has to judge many difficult controversies, to compose differences between club owners, to pass upon contracts, to discipline and punish mutinous players, to stand between the industry and the public, to make the rounds of the camps before the season opens, to attend games, the observed of all observers."

This means no small job, but it is by no means all, for "what is chiefly expected of him is that he shall keep the game clean as a manly sport and free from the taint of graft and gambling." Can mortal man do as much? Some skepticism is inevitable, but we read that Judge Landis actually does this "with a passionate fervor." No doubt the league officers as well as the players needed a man of his character and reputation to keep them in order, and recent disclosures confirm this opinion.

IMPORTED LECTURERS.

It has been noted that it is usually the second-rate rather than the first-rate English literary celebrities who grace the American lecture platform. Some interesting information in this connection is given by a London correspondent of the Baltimore Sun. He tells how "those English novelists, near-novelists, poets and 'poetasters' who compose the lecture brigade" in America are looked upon by the bigger fellows who so far have declined to come. It seems that they "find themselves heartily laughed at when they leave, and even more heartily when they return, so much so that they actually fall to laughing themselves." And then the returned lecturers and their literary critics join their voices "in a wild guffaw at the expense of the poor gullible Americans who fall for it all." For, says the Sun's London observer, "they think we are a lot of boobs to pay out good money for the sort of thing these lecturers have to sell, and of course, we are."

Now what do our "culture"-insatiate American women think of that? Will the imported article still have an appeal that the home-brew noticeably lacks, quite irrespective of intrinsic quality? It is pretty safe to say that the ungrateful foreigners will continue to get the most of our "good money." The Sun's correspondent admits that not all the returned lecturers are contemptuous, but says there is quite enough of it and adds: "These candid observations of the literary freebooters and barn-stormers who flock to America in increasing numbers each year are mentioned that at least a few of their hospitable hosts may get an idea of what their guests really think of them."

That Body of Yours

SEA FISH AS FOOD

Some years ago there was a great outcry against the use of meat. It was blamed for heart, kidney, and liver ailments, and in addition was supposed to cause all the intestinal disturbances known.

Our research men admit that as a nation we eat too much meat, but they no longer attribute to meat all the troubles mentioned above.

One of the slogans of that time was "eat more fish and less meat," the idea being that if folks ate fish two or three times a week, they would therefore eat just that much less meat. The real value of fish as a food was not really taken very seriously.

However, the hardy fishermen of our coasts, and Eskimos of the North, make almost a complete dietary of fish.

Now as a matter of fact sea fish resemble meat in that they are rich in proteid matter which is the builder or repair man of the tissues, but in addition they possess other elements that are worth much to the body.

Iodine is essential to the body and if there is any deficiency we have disturbances of the thyroid gland, which is a regulator of the body processes. Sea food is very rich in iodine, even canned fish retaining most of the iodine content.

The fat soluble vitamin that makes cod liver oil such a valuable food, is not only found in cod fish, but to a great extent in all sea fish.

Further, sea fish are rich in salts that are essential to rich blood, such as lime, phosphorous, sodium, chlorine and others.

Therefore the idea behind the use of sea fish should be that it is a valuable food in itself, replacing meat to a considerable extent, and having also the rich vitamins, iodine, salts, and so forth.

So if you are sure of fresh sea fish, remember that it makes a "change" of diet which in itself is worth much to your appetite and digestion.

However, where folks live far inland, and are a little uncertain as to the freshness of sea fish, they would be wise to use canned sea fish, which is almost as rich in food content as the fresh fish.

ULSTER PARK.

Ulster Park, Dec. 23.—Jacob Gulick, Edgar DeGraff and Walter Herring, who are attending Hope College, Michigan, are spending their vacation at their homes here.

The Sunday school will hold their Christmas exercises Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wheeler have sold their fruit farm to Mr. Garrison of Mt. Vernon. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler will move to Port Ewen in the near future. They will be greatly missed in the community where they have resided for about 18 years. The best wishes of their neighbors go with them to their new home.

A number of Grange members and their families attended the regular meeting of the Grange last Wednesday evening and enjoyed the meeting, especially the literary hour with the Christmas tree and the exchange of presents. There was a solo by L. Herring and a song "Jolly Old St. Nicholas," by Mabel Story, Mary Herring and Helen Churchwell. The next meeting, January 5, will be installation of officers.

Opie Gaudette is visiting friends and relatives in Canada.

L. M. Hermance has again taken up his business in Poughkeepsie making daily trips from his farm here.

Fifty-two children have been listed for the diphtheria clinic to be held in Ulster Park. The contract is not yet complete and no date has been set for the clinic.

Jeffries Pennington, who is attending college in Vermont, is spending his vacation at his home here.

Today's Story in New York History

Prophet Joseph Smith, Founder of the Sect of Mormons, Born December 23, 1805.

Joseph Smith, the Mormon prophet was born in Sharon, Vermont, December 23, 1805. When a lad of ten years his parents removed to Palmyra, Ontario (now Wayne) county, New York, and four years later settled in Manchester, a few miles distant.

Young Joseph was employed as a farm hand, and could merely read and write, when, in the spring of 1820, in the midst of great religious excitement, four of his father's family having joined the Presbyterian Church, Joseph claimed to have gone into the woods to pray, when he had a vision in some respects similar to St. Paul's, but was told not to join any sect.

On the evening of September 21, 1822, after retiring, he claimed to have had another vision. According to his story an angel that he called Moroni visited him and told him of a book written upon golden plates, in which was a history of the former inhabitants of this country and "the fullness of the everlasting gospel."

He was instructed to dig for the plates in the hill Cumorah, four miles from Palmyra, between that town and Manchester. He subsequently went to the spot that he had seen in the vision, found the plates of gold, but an unseen power prevented him from removing them.

Moroni, with whom Smith claimed to have had many interviews, told him that he had not kept the Lord's command, that he valued the golden command, that he valued the golden them, and not till his love for gold had abated and he was willing to give his time to the Lord and translate the inscriptions would they ever be delivered to him.

It is claimed that the heavenly messenger delivered the sacred records into Smith's hands on September 22, 1827.

Smith told of his visions and to escape the jeers and ridicule of his neighbors, he went to reside with his wife's family in Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania, where he began to translate the plates, the characters on which were in a tongue styled "reformed Egyptian," by the aid of Urim and Thummim, a pair of magic spectacles, from behind a curtain, dictating the "Book of Mormon" to Martin Harris, and later to Oliver Cowdery. Smith received the priesthood of Aaron from John the Baptist, and of Melchizedek from Peter, James and John.

The "Book of Mormon" was printed in Palmyra, N. Y., by Egbert B. Grandin in 1830. The "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints" was organized April 6, 1830, by six "saints" at the home of Peter Whitmer in Fayette, Seneca county, N. Y.

Smith was recognized as a prophet, signalizing his "new dispensation" by casting out a devil from Newell Knight, of Colesville, Broome county.

The church at Fayette began to gather disciples. On June 1, 1830, thirty members were present, and missionaries were sent out, among whom were Brigham Young, the two Brothers Pratt, and Sidney Rigdon, a converted Campbellite preacher.

Churches were formed in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and even in Indiana and Illinois.

Then came persecution, and the "saints" selected Kirtland, Ohio, as the promised land of the Mormons. In the fall of 1831 a revelation was made known which located the heavenly city in Jackson county, Missouri, and soon two thousand persons had gathered in that place. Here a printing press was established and a monthly and a weekly newspaper published.

In 1833, Smith was dragged from his bed one night in Hiram, Ohio, and after being tarred and feathered and otherwise outraged, was left for dead.

By the time Smith reached his followers in Missouri he had had another revelation, which made him a "military leader of the people".

Quarreling and fighting between Saints and Gentiles was constant, and the interference of state authority was invoked by the latter. The militia was called out, when after much loss and suffering, and many deaths, the Saints were driven, in the depth of the winter, across the Mississippi River into Illinois.

The prophet and his brother, Hyram, and other leading Mormons were seized and sentenced by court martial to be shot, but they were subsequently released.

Smith was afterward frequently arrested, and while at Nauvoo, Ill., refused to acknowledge the validity of a warrant and had the sheriff conducted out of town by the city marshal. He was then arrested and placed in jail at Carthage on the charge of treason. While he was there a mob broke into the jail June 27, 1844, and the prophet and his brother were shot to death.

Joseph Smith has been conceded one of the most remarkable figures of the nineteenth century. Starting in life without education or worldly advantage, he became a recognized leader of many thousands of enthusiastic converts, who believed he was a veritable prophet of God.

Army Baskets for 150 Poor Families

Distribution of Christmas Dinner Baskets Begins Friday Morning—Funds Needed For Christmas Tree Next Tuesday.

The Salvation Army will play Santa Claus to 150 poor families Friday morning at 11 o'clock when it distributes as many baskets of food at the Salvation Army Hall on North Front street.

Ensign Ralph Miller has received many and liberal contributions from the people of the city and Ulster county and these donations have made it possible for this organization to make so many families happy on Christmas Day. However, further contributions are needed as on Tuesday night the Salvation Army will have a Christmas tree for the poor children of the city.

The Salvation Army has received requests for baskets from hundreds of families. As the organization receives these requests it sends out a representative to investigate each case to determine whether it warrants the giving of a basket. By employing this method the Salvation Army is certain to help in the most needful cases.

Contributions as yet unpublished are:

Loyal

Despite the fact that the coroner's findings indicated that Wallace Probasco had had an affair with Mrs. Robert Hawley Ingersoll, wife of the dollar watch man, and that Mrs. Ingersoll wounded him and killed herself when he threatened to leave her, Mrs. Probasco (above) furnished his $12,500 bail. Probasco was held because Mrs. Ingersoll's friends accused him of the shooting, which took place in a New York apartment.

MRS. COW'S SHOP

"Moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow, "I think I have an idea."

"Why, Mrs. Cow, why, Mrs. Cow," said Miss Brown Cow, "don't be saying such things unless you're sure you're right."

"Moo," said Mrs. Cow, "I don't know whether the idea is a good one or not, but at least, I have an idea."

"Well, well, moo, moo," said Miss Brown Cow, "that's pretty good.

"When did you think it up? It has seemed to me that all this time I've been sitting here and day-dreaming and having a comfortable, restful chew, you have been asleep."

"I was asleep a good deal of the time, but I've been having this idea a little at a time for several days now. In that way one does not get tired out with too much thinking, and at the same time, one gets ideas slowly.

"You see I have a little bit of an idea. It hardly amounts to anything. Well, instead of getting all tired out trying to make it amount to something and to work over it, I just stop and say to myself:

"'Mrs. Cow, rest my dear. It will come to you in time. Don't worry, my dear.'

"And then I take my own advice. After all, that is always such good advice to take.

"Then I am sure I will be pleased. If I took the advice of others, I might please them, or again I might just make them feel that their opinion was the only thing anyway and that it was the only thing for me to take.

"I Could Open a Shop."

"When I take my own advice I think to myself what good advice it is to take.

"But to get back to the way I have of getting an idea.

"Several days ago, it was around milking time. Morning milking time.

"I was coming slowly down toward the pasture, stopping to nod at a flower here, and smile at a long blade of grass there.

"The rest of you were all around. The dog was nearby. The farmer's son was, too. But I paid little attention to anything in particular.

"I came along and I thought to myself a little bit of the flowers that were in the fields, the pretty wild flowers.

"Well, that was about as much of an idea as I had at that time.

"Then another time, a little later, I was thinking, and I got as far as thinking that the flowers in the fields were prettier than any of the flowers I saw on hats.

"That was as much as I thought of at that time.

"Then a little later I thought to myself that a wild-flower hat shop would be wonderful.

"There could be mushroom-shape hats and all sorts of different shapes we could copy that we see around.

"Then we could gather the flowers with our ever-moving mouths, and we could fix up the hats as we lie about under the trees in the mornings and the afternoons.

"We could meet at different parts of the meadow and pasture and have hat-making clubs.

"Then I could open a shop with all the hats around. I thought that part of the pasture where there are the trees with the low branches would be a good place.

"We could hang the hats on the branches and show them off that way.

"And I'd be the shop keeper, and after the business got started I would just bow and smile and moo at my customers while the others—the ones who would be my assistants—would do the work.

"Then maybe I could afford to have electric lights in the barn just as the cows down the road have in their barn."

"Goodness," said Miss Cow, "don't think of putting yourself to all that trouble—and with us included in the work, too:

"Wait for the farmer to put in the electric lights. I believe he will, before long."

"And in the meantime," agreed Mrs. Cow quickly, "the evenings are so lovely and the weather so ideal, I don't believe I'll bother after all."

MORGAN HILL.

Morgan Hill, Dec. 23.—Ferro's Pine Crest Hall was crowded on Thursday evening, December 16, when the play, "The Old Country Aunt's Visit to the City", was given for the benefit of the Home Bureau. The spirit of Christmas cheer pervaded audience and players and was heightened by the beautifully decorated hall and the stage with its imitation red brick fireplace and glowing logs. Mr. and Mrs. Ferro, who had spared no trouble in putting up decorations for both hall and stage, received a rising vote of thanks at the end of the entertainment. Refreshments and dancing followed the play and a happy sociable evening was enjoyed by all. The country aunt and her up-to-date nieces received many hand shakes and congratulations after the performance. To date the receipts amount to between fifty and sixty dollars. The following was the program:

Community singing, "America"; the play, Act 1; community singing, "My Old Kentucky Home"; address by Miss Nance; community singing, "Jingle Bells"; the play, Act 2; community singing, "Auld Lang Syne."

Cast of characters: The old country aunt, Miss A. Foster; her up-to-date nieces, Eleanor, Miss Edna Wieland; Harriet, Miss Elsie Barthel, their friend and guest, Miss L. Foster. Party scene: Misses M. McCann, T. Woehlers and G. Russo, Messrs. M. Ferro, H. Ferro, C. Amundsen and H. Hopkins.

NEW HURLEY.

New Hurley, Dec. 23.—A number of men are busy filling the ice house at the Sheffield Creamery.

Miss Emma Ward of Modena has been spending a few days at J. H. Denniston's.

The annual Sunday school Christmas dinner for members of the school and their families will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Monell on Wednesday, December 29.

On Sunday evening, December 19, a Christian Endeavor Society was organized with the following officers: President, John Mackey; vice-president, E. LeVerne Powell; secretary, Gerow Schoonmaker; treasurer, Ida Mae Cronk. Meeting will be held each Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

At a Ladies' Aid meeting held last Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James Denniston the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Perry DuBois; vice-president, Mrs. Edgar Radiker; treasurer, Mrs. Gerow Wilkin; secretary, Miss Bertha Sutton. The committees to take charge of the months are: January and February, the Ladies' Aid: March and April, Miss Jennie Traphagen, Mrs. James Denniston, Mrs. Roy Denniston; May and June, Mrs. Perry DuBois, Mrs. Edward Powell and Mrs. Nelson Hedges; July and August, the Young Woman's Club; September and October, Mrs. C. Edward Thorne, Mrs. Alex Thorne and Mrs. Edgar Radiker; November and December, Mrs. Cordelia Van Kleeck, Mrs. Marcus Birch and Mrs. Harry Birch. It was decided at this meeting not to send solicitors around as has been the custom in previous years but the ladies of the congregation are requested to hand their dues to one of the officers some time during the month of January.

HUMAN PROGRESS through the AGES

PAUL REVERE

THERE IS NO MORE GLOWING illustration of the progress made in news dissemination than a contrast between the speed with which Woodrow Wilson's war declaration was carried to every corner of the globe and Paul Revere's ride at midnight, warning the Colonists of the approach of the British.

IF PAUL REVERE WERE ALIVE today he would marvel at the speed with which The Associated Press carries news from every nation. He would marvel also at the news gathering facilities of this organization. You read

CHILD TORTURED BY PARENTS IN HOME ON BARGE

Girl Doubled Up Like Jack-Knife and Crammed Into Kitchen Drawer.

Providence, R. I.—Scarred and bruised by stern, self-righteous North Carolina parents, a child of the dark, grimy barges, four-year-old Mary Marshall, pondered on a tenderness she had never known to exist in the world before firm, kindly men, garbed in blue and brass, took her father and mother away.

Mary was safe from punishment in the Doyle avenue refuge of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. With her were David and Lila May, her fourteen year-old brother and seven-year-old sister. Cola and Minnie Marshall, the parents, were in Providence county jail.

The tale told of Mary Marshall's young life is one of pathos and suffering, of primitive torture, almost of horror.

Doubled up like a jack-knife, she has been crammed in a kitchen drawer. Tied by the wrists and ankles, she has been slung between two beds like a hammock. Her hands have been strung to a bedpost above her head, so that only the tips of her toes supported her. Her flesh bears the welts of a thick, heavy board. And all, her parents piously assert, because she "told stories" and was "a little liar."

Knew No Kindness.

A daughter of the water front, Mary has known but the noisome smells of tidewater, the ghostly still hulks of night anchored craft, the tenebrous wharves and shadowy slips. The lights of cities have glimmered in the distance. Her stunned little mind has given them no fairy nature, but merely the quality of unexplained being, beautiful things to be taken for granted.

Slung Between Two Beds Like a Hammock.

For Judge Frederick Rueckert in juvenile court, where Cola and Minnie Marshall, who hail from Greensboro, N. C., were committed to jail in default of $1,000 bail after pleading not guilty to charges of cruelty, little Mary held up her hands and pitiful face for inspection. Sergeant Flemming and Agent Proctor had little difficulty in impressing the court with the seriousness of the case.

Plight Is Discovered.

The child's plight came to light when police investigated a report that a little girl was being mistreated at 16 Cope street. There they found the Marshalls in a lodging house, where they had temporarily taken quarters while the father was employed as a stevedore at the state pier. He returned to a floating home later.

Sergeant Flemming notified Mr. Proctor, who, with more police, went subsequently to the barge upon which the Marshalls had taken up their abode. The tot exhibited a board two feet long with which she said her parents had struck her. The parents denied this, her father maintaining he had whittled another board down to an eighth of an inch thickness to punish her when he thought she needed it. Mary is, it is said, apparently bright, and with kindness and attention may be rendered as happy and playful as tots of her age normally should be.

100-Ton Whale Rides Warship Bow for Day

Los Angeles, Calif.—The story about the 100-ton whale that rode for a day on the bow of the superdreadnaught New Mexico, while it was returning to Los Angeles harbor from the Puget Sound navy yard, has just been made known.

The whale, before discovery, had the skipper, chief engineer and navigator of the battleship badly worried.

The navigator, taking bearings from radio compass stations as the New Mexico steamed southward, found it was making only nine knots an hour. The captain, knowing that he had a ship which had not faltered since it was commissioned in 1918, is said to have spoken rather sharply about the respective abilities of the navigator and chief engineer.

It was at this crucial moment that the leviathan was discovered parked across the battleship bow and removed.

Child, Five, Goes With House When It Is Sold

Los Angeles.—When a boarding and rooming house here was sold a month ago, it appears that five-year-old Barbara Carpenter was a chattel which went with it.

The house was purchased by Mrs. B. Hebard from its former occupant, Mrs. Grace Stark. Mrs. Hebard told police Mrs. Stark turned the child over to her, saying the mother would call for it in a few days. So far no mother has appeared, her name is unknown and the child is unable to help the situation.

HARDENED CONVICT SHOWS CHIVALRY

Takes Blame for Crime to Shield Girl.

New York.—Arthur Murray has been in and out of many prisons since he was first caught shoplifting by Boston police 'way back in 1875. He is seventy years old, and he told in a bitter voice of having spent half his life behind the bars. It makes you hard, he said.

But, for all the bitterness, Arthur Murray hasn't forgotten the chivalry he absorbed in Boston more than half a century ago, when he was "straight." He stood up before the justices of special sessions and took upon himself all the blame for a crime in which he was caught with a nineteen-year-old girl.

Murray said he met Mrs. J. Erickson, nineteen, in a motion-picture theater. He went walking with her and, in passing the Oppenheim-Collins store, he said, he suggested going in for a bit of shopping.

"I was the one who took the hosiery and perfume," he insisted. The goods were valued at $4.65. "Mrs. Erickson knew nothing of the thefts. It was only her misfortune to be with me."

Store detectives' story did not bear out Murray's statements. The justices sentenced him to an indeterminate term in the penitentiary, which, in view of his record, was as lenient as it could be. Mrs. Erickson was remanded for sentence later. In the meantime probation officers will examine her record.

Dog Gives Life in Futile Effort to Rescue Four

Nashville, Tenn.—Rescued three years ago and given a home by Walter Gasser, a farmer near here, a forlorn little shepherd pup grew to become the playmate of the children of James A. Johnson, a tenant on the Gasser farm.

Now "Collie," the once homeless waif taken from the roadside, is dead. A blackened, singed, blinded and crazed animal, he surrendered life, but he had paid his debt of gratitude to those who befriended him. The dog failed to save the lives of Mrs. Johnson and her three children when flames enveloped their home, but he did not fail in his love for those who had shown him kindness.

When Johnson poured kerosene into a stove the liquid exploded, and the house soon was in flames. The dog raced into the house and pulled at the bed clothing of Maraline Johnson until she awoke and made her way outside. She was burned fatally in her dash for safety.

Then the dog leaped into Mrs. Johnson's room and awakened the mother. She died in an attempt to rescue her two small children in another room.

Meanwhile the dog ran outside again to the sleeping place of Arnold Hedigar, another tenant. Hedigar awoke as a howling, barking creature sank its teeth in his wrist and was gone.

"Willie" Stephens was asleep in the rear of a truck. He was to start for Nashville an hour later. Stephens was brought to the ground by the frenzied animal.

Then, as the two men ran to the fire, "Collie" dashed by them and leaped time and again in an attempt to gain entrance to the Gasser home. Then, after the fire, "Collie" was found some distance away, where he had crawled to wait until his burns should claim his life, sacrificed to duty—and love.

Priest, Nuns Survive 21 Raids by Pirates

Hongkong.—With their safe arrival at Kongmoon recently came the revelation that Father W. A. Fletcher and seven Canadian nuns had survived raids made by 21 different gangs of pirates on the steamer Walhei, bound from Kongmoon for Youngkong. The priest and the nuns were robbed and locked in a small stateroom for 60 hours. The vessel was looted.

Twelve well-dressed Chinese, posing as passengers, shot and killed the Chinese soldier guards, the purser, cashier and clerk of the Walhei, beached the vessel, robbed the passengers and leisurely removed the cargo of kerosene, food supplies and furniture. The Chinese passengers were taken ashore by the bandits and held for ransom.

After the first party of pirates left the Walhei 20 other gangs of robbers boarded the vessel at different times for loot. The last gang was reduced to stealing the shoes worn by the nuns and Father Fletcher's hat and coat.

Effect of Canada's Wet Vote Here

Ontario Vote May Possibly Lower Prices Slightly In Northern New York But Supply Is Easily Obtained Anyway.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP).—While federal prohibition officers at border points are devoting their attention to stopping the smuggling of liquor, the average man on the street is doing a good deal of thinking about the possible effects of the sale of intoxicants in the Province of Ontario.

The average citizens, at first somewhat exhilarated over the prospect of obtaining a legitimate liquor supply so near to this country, has calmed considerably, and the situation now has settled down into one of watchfulness. Residents of the district bordering on the Province of Quebec have become quite accustomed to the sale of liquor so near, and the prediction has been made that the same attitude will be taken by those across the St. Lawrence river from Ontario after the new law has been in effect a short time.

The only effect on this section, so far as observers have been able to determine, will be a slight lowering of the prices, but persons familiar with existing rum running believe there will be little change in that field.

Some preparations quite apart from the liquor trade are being made at various points along the St. Lawrence to handle the expected American invasion of the province. One dealer in real estate in the Thousand Islands is anticipating a rush of business, while many persons have signified their intention of "going over" when the sale begins. Enactment of definite legislation authorizing the sale must be awaited, however, before plans can be made, so no great thought is being given to actual dates as yet.

Reports from the central part of the state indicate little interest in the election of a wet government in Ontario, the general consensus being that persons who desire liquor can get some variety now, and that only if they are on vacation along the border will they take the trouble to make the trip to Canada.

CATHOLIC NEAR EAST WELFARE ASSOCIATION

A definite plan was formulated in the regional conference recently held in New York city under the presidency of Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, for the promotion of the Catholic Near East Welfare Association.

Many attended the conference and the up-state diocese was numerously represented. Professor Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University and president of the association explained the objectives of the works to further the existence of charitable institutions already established in Asia Minor and Greece, the extension of financial aid to agricultural and industrial schools in Palestine and the initiation of a student exchange program for the benefit of Russian boys. The Pope has already expended millions of dollars to avert famine, epidemics and social chaos in these lands.

Joseph F. Moore, executive director of the membership appeal detailed the progress already made in enlisting American interest in the cause.

Cardinal Hayes proclaimed that the movement was in answer to the post war needs of the world and would doubtless be of historic importance. The cardinal said that now on the eve of Christmas the association is organizing on a permanent basis to restore to the Near East something of the great gift it gave the world on the first Christmas morning over nineteen centuries ago.

Growing Brazil Nuts

The bureau of plant industry says that Brazil nuts are not grown in North America, because it is very difficult to germinate the seeds. Unless the seeds are transplanted in the pod, they are sure to fail. There have been few records of success. Brazil has passed a law which prohibits the exportation of the seeds of Brazil nuts in pods. This is to keep the industry within the country.

A large number of members of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church were in Kingston on Sunday afternoon, where they attended the rally of all the Holy Name Societies in Ulster county.

A Christmas party was held last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Overbaugh on West Bridge street, by members of the Monday Club. The event proved to be an enjoyable one with Mrs. Overbaugh and Mrs. George F. Kaufman as the hostesses. After some very interesting readings, each member was presented with a well filled Christmas stocking. Refreshments were served.

Oscar Erhler of Allen street, who has been employed by Clinton Van Buskirk for several years, has gone to Atlanta, Georgia, where he will spend some time.

Miss Ruth Washburn of St. Agnes's School at Albany, is spending the holiday vacation with her parents on Barclay Heights.

Miss Mary Maxwell is quite ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. Milton Hill, on the South Side.

Thomas Ball of Ann street is improving very nicely from his recent illness.

Work on the new water pipe line from Saugerties to Blue Mountain, has been suspended and Contractor Hartman will complete the work in the spring.

John McDonough of Prospect street will spend the holiday season in Cleveland, Ohio.

Harry Daniels of New York city spent the past few days at the Maxwell House.

Mrs. Nelson Van Bramer, who underwent a very serious operation at the Kingston City Hospital, has returned to her home on Main street.

A birthday party was held on Monday evening for M. A. Vanderwaag at his home on Washington avenue. The guests were the Men's Choral Club of the M. E. Church. Several selections were sung and refreshments were enjoyed by all.

U. S. light keeper, Conrad Hawk, has lighted for the last time the lights at the light house for this year and navigation on the river at this time is officially ended.

George W. Eggleson, who has been ill with pneumonia at his home on Barclay Heights, is greatly improved.

Two Christmas trees in front of the Myer Bros. Pharmacy on Partition street are drawing considerable attention, and shows some real yuletide spirit.

Mrs. Martin Beach and daughter of Newark, N. J., are visiting Mrs. Martin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin, on Hill street.

The Saugerties Cooperative Savings and Loan Association will hold their regular meeting on Monday night instead of Friday on account of Christmas.

John H. Ellinger dislocated his shoulder while coming out of his home in Malden one night recently. Dr. Luther Emerick was called to attend him.

The Lutheran Church on Market street will hold an early morning service at 6 o'clock Christmas morning, the Rev. W. F. Hersh will preach and the sacrament of the holy communion will be administered.

J. C. Benedict, whose resignation as superintendent of schools will take effect on January 1, was presented with a beautiful plush automobile rug on Tuesday morning during the chapel exercises in the Saugerties High School. The gift was from the pupils of the school and their teachers. R. F. Overbaugh, Jr., made the presentation speech and assured Mr. Benedict that his labors were appreciated by all. Mr. Benedict expressed his whole-hearted thanks for the unexpected gift. Appropriate remarks were made by Mrs. John A. Snyder, John T. Washburn, Mrs. George B. Snyder, J. W. Frankel, Frederick S. Van Voorhes, members of the board, and Dr. Luther Emerick, president of the board of education. Christmas carols were sung which ended the chapel exercises of the morning.

"Hour in Dixie" By Noted Singer

Mrs. Elizabeth Pattee-Wallach, who for the past two seasons has conducted the Monday evening concerts at the Park Theatre, Newburgh, will appear in an original entertainment entitled an "Hour in Dixie", under the auspices of the Catholic Daughters of America, at Knights of Columbus Hall on December 30.

This entertainment is Mrs. Pattee-Wallach's own arrangement of negro folk and characteristic songs, poems and impersonations, and possessing a rich contralto voice and an extraordinary gift for dialect work, Mrs. Pattee-Wallach is an artist of no mean ability.

The Kingston Male Quartet, together with one or two other numbers of local talent, will supplement Mrs. Wallach's entertainment.

Tickets are for sale at O'Reilly's book stores, 38 John street and 530 Broadway, or may be obtained by calling 1709.

WealthMayAwait Hopkins Families

Fortune of Mark Hopkins, California Millionaire, Again Excites Persons of That Name as Efforts Are Made to Trace Relationship.

Penn Yan, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP).—The possibility of inheriting a fortune again is interesting the Hopkins families of Yates county after a lapse of more than 15 years. The fortune in question is that originally left by Mark Hopkins, who died in California about 1881. It was divided among three nephews.

Although some members of the Hopkins families long ago gave up the hope of any such inheritance, recent news of the alleged discovery of a Mark Hopkins will in North Carolina revived interest. Still more recently a young woman came through Yates county asking for information concerning Richard Hopkins, believed to be a relative.

As far back as 1911, the late Ezra Hopkins, well known vineyardist of the township of Jerusalem, received letters from a Pacific coast attorney requesting that he establish his relationship to the late California millionaire. The grape grower paid no attention to the letters until they became so numerous that he decided to end the one-sided correspondence and informed the attorney there could be no relationship. The letters continued coming, however, and even after Ezra Hopkins's death his sons, Wayne and Neil, received them. They like their father, paid no attention. During the past few months, however, others by the name of Hopkins, some distantly related to Ezra have had letters on the same subject.

The connection between those bearing the name of Hopkins in Yates county and the family on the Pacific coast seems to come through the exodus from this locality many years ago of Richard Hopkins, who lived near this city. "Dick" Hopkins, as he was generally known, when he became of age went to California and joined a kinsman of his mother, Charles Perry, formerly a resident of Yates county. Perry owned considerable property near San Francisco and was a bachelor. Dick Hopkins was treated by his relative like a son and came eventually to inherit the property.

Although the inherited estate never was in the million dollar class, many people evidently have confused the inheritance of Richard Hopkins with the fortune left by Mark Hopkins. Less than 25 years ago both Dick Hopkins and Perry visited kinsmen in Yates county and at that time Mark Hopkins had been dead some years. Moreover Mark Hopkins never was known to have married, while Dick Hopkins had a wife and children.

Former residents of St. Clair, Mich., also recall that the estate of Mark Hopkins was left to three of his nephews who lived in the Michigan village, and often speak of the excitement occasioned when news spread that the "Hopkins boys had become rich overnight". The three left town with their families almost immediately, and seldom have visited the place since.

But despite all the discrepancies in the lives of the two men and the differences in ages and years, several bearing the name of Hopkins still hold fast to the belief that some day they will inherit a fortune. One elderly man recently persuaded his attorney to write a San Francisco court to ask what the chances were of having the money divided but got little satisfaction.

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION AT STONE RIDGE GRANGE.

The meeting of Stone Ridge Grange held on Monday evening, December 20, was a Christmas celebration. The program was in charge of the chaplain, Mrs. Ross Osterhoudt, the lady assistant steward, Miss Sara Lounsbery; and the graces, Margaret Hardenburgh, Elizabeth Bogart, Helen Jones. This program was opened by singing "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear", followed by the reading of the Christmas story from the Bible by the master, Ross Osterhoudt. Singing, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" reading, "Building Deep", also by the master. Then old Santa Claus came and gave everybody a present. Besides that, through the kindness of Mrs. R. Heires everyone present received a tape measure and a cake of soap. These were furnished by Colgate & Co. The Diamond Salt Co. also furnished every member present with a picnic salt cup, filled with salt.

After the program the refreshment committee, Oscar Hornbeck, Robert Service and L. D. Sahler, assisted by the out-going officers, served sandwiches, cake and cocoa. The next meeting will be Monday evening, January 3, and will be the installation of the officers for 1927. The installing officer will be the outgoing master, Ross Osterhoudt. Refreshments will be in charge of Luther Garrison, William Webber and Don Gillespie.

High Offices; No Salaries

Many high offices in England are filled by men who receive no salaries, among which is that of the prime minister. The prime minister, however, usually accepts some other post such as first lord of the treasury, which has a salary of $25,000 a year. Justices of the peace, guardians of the poor and district councillors give their services free. The lord mayor of London, though he receives a salary of $50,000 a year, cannot hope to escape with paying out less than $125,000 a year in the fulfillment of his office, so that it really costs him $75,000 a year to hold the office.

HIGH FALLS.

High Falls, Dec. 23.—On Sunday, December 26, there will be preaching service in the Reformed Church. Ernest Palen will officiate and a good attendance is desired.

On Christmas eve, December 24, the Sunday school of the Reformed Church will hold their Christmas entertainment. Everybody welcome.

The Home Bureau held its monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the basement of the church. This meeting was a very instructive one and enjoyed by a large number of its members. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and a very social time was enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Anna Backman has rented her rooms vacated by Charles Percell.

Denton Stillwell of Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. George Lefever, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Steen on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wood and Mr. and Mrs. Millard Roosa of New Paltz, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Festus Yeaple.

Mrs. Florence Dumond is spending the Christmas vacation at her home here.

Carlton Church, who has been confined to his home for two weeks, on account of illness, is able to be out.

PALENTOWN.

Palentown, Dec. 22.—Mr. and Mrs. William Feltman spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Barringer.

Mathew Diamond, who has been suffering from a sore eye for some time, is much better.

David Palen was a caller at Asa Keator's one day recently.

Mrs. Sarah Diamond, who has been confined to her bed with a cold, is able to be up around the house.

E. Barringer and family called on Mr. and Mrs. Henry Krom of Tobacco on Sunday evening.

William Diamond is very busy drawing pulp wood to Napanoch for his neighbors. He makes two and three trips a day. Bill is a hustler.

In French Africa

So diversified is the native population of French West Africa that official reports classify the inhabitants under more than fifty groups. Some very extensive areas of this region are practically deserted, while others have a population as high as fifty persons to the square kilometer. The total number of white people is not over [illegible].

OFFICE CAT

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

Our idea of a soft job, is the guy who works for a furniture company and hangs around an asylum collecting the hair the lunatics pull out!

Dr. Mayo declares walking is the best exercise one can take. So it is, Doc, so it is—if you can find any place to walk.

Many a Christmas necktie is born to blush unseen.

"I am broke, Bill, but Yule-tide me over to New Year's, won't you?"

The usual lie told on Christmas morning: "This is just what I wanted." But it is a decent lie.

Achievement.

Once a man drew up a simple list of New Year resolutions. He promised:

Never to drink whiskey or alcohol in any other form.

Never to swear, not even at his stenographer.

To work eight hours every day and to get ten hours sleep at night.

Never to retell a story more than ten times, but to laugh at those of his friends no matter how ancient.

To be attentive to his wife, even when he was with her.

To like his job and admire his superiors.

To give money to the children before they even asked for it.

Never to try to use the car and to appear pleased when the repair bills came in.

He gave a copy of the resolutions to his wife. He never broke one of them. He died January 1.

Swap early and enjoy the rush.

Hobbles: "My wife got me a box of cigars for a Christmas present. But I'll get even with her yet."

Cobbles: "What will you do?"

Hobbles: "I'm going to select her next hat."

Tommy (laid up from too much Christmas dinner): "I feel awful sick, Mamma, but it was worth it."

Real Suspense!

My mother warned me not to go
Alone to see the picture show.
She said that mashers were alert,
For lonely girls with whom to flirt.

But still I went, and sure enough,
A wicked masher did his stuff;
He whispered something in my ear—
I made believe I didn't hear.

He reached and touched me on the knee,
What do you think of nerve like that?
And this is what he hissed at me,
"Get up! You're sitting on my hat!"

America conquered the English Channel. Now let's tackle the English language.

Here's a catch line for advertisers: "See our moonlight hose for contented calves."

It may be all right to make mistakes, but don't respond to encores.

"I sneezed a sneeze into the air, it fell to earth I knew not where; but hard and cold were the looks of those in whose vicinity I snoze."

Both the optimist and pessimist see a lot of things that ain't.

Xmas Program at Y's Men's Meeting

In harmony with the present Yuletide season, a Christmas program was rendered at the regular Y's Men's meeting on Tuesday evening. It assumed a Biblical aspect, due to the fact that "angels," singing carols, were present, as well as "Wise Men."

The speaker for the occasion was the Rev. Ernest G. Reith of Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. During the course of the talk he showed how people are gradually substituting the present day superficial meaning of Christmas for the real meaning. He illustrated this point by differentiating between pep and power, showing how pep is the predominating element in the celebrations of today, instead of power.

Just before the meeting closed, Santa Claus appeared on the scene and presented everyone present with a novel gift.

The "angels," who were Mrs Lester Finley, Miss Jesse Cowley, Miss Ruth Tongue, Miss Eva Shook, Miss Martha Hendrickson, Miss Roberta Avery, Miss Kathryn Stelle and Miss Evelyn Maynard, were very much appreciated by the organization.

The feature of the evening was the good behavior of Lester Finley and Clarence Wolfersteig, due to the presence of two certain "angels."

ACCORD.

Accord, Dec. 23.—M. P. Palmer and family left for Miami, Florida, on Wednesday.

The Accord post office will be open on Christmas day, Saturday, December 25, from seven a. m. to twelve noon only. There will be no rural delivery service on this date.

Ancient Hairdressing

Hairdressing "a la Titus" describes a method of hairdress which became fashionable in France at the time of the revolution. It consists of short, frizzed hair. According to the memoirs of the actor Talma, it originated with him while playing the part of Titus in the tragedy "Brutus." It is believed to have been suggested by an ancient statue.

Only a Ride Can Tell You the Packard Story

YOU probably have some accustomed route of travel—some favorite road to camp, resort or club. It may be a broad state highway, a mountain trail, a pair of ruts winding through the forest—or a combination of all of these.

You have driven it many times—perhaps in many cars. You know what to expect of a car on this road. So we want you to drive a Packard over it.

Name the day and the hour. A Packard, either Six or Eight as you prefer, will be waiting at your door. Take the wheel and follow this familiar route of your own choosing to its end.

This is the way we would like to demonstrate a Packard to you. For while a ride around town will give you an appreciation of many Packard superiorities, it cannot tell the whole story.

Years, not hours, would be required to demonstrate many of the car's most important qualities—its long life, its economy of operation, its infrequent service requirements.

But on such a trip at least you may judge for yourself of Packard power, acceleration, flexibility, comfort and ease of control.

An acceptance of our offer carries with it no obligation. It will be a real pleasure to put a car at your disposal for any trip which can be made in a day.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

Hi-Y Addressed By Dr. Seeley

The Hi-Y Club held its regular weekly meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening. Vice President Ernest Smith presided.

Dr. Seeley was the speaker of the evening and spoke on "What I Would Do If I Were a Boy". He gave ten very interesting and helpful points to the boys. The first one was, he would set aside a few minutes each day for physical exercise. "Too often," he said "a man is hampered when he begins to grow old by the poor physical condition of his body. He also suggested that the boys learn to laugh, as laughter is the greatest tonic there is. His second point was, he would strive to be an original thinker. He suggested that all the boys cultivate their own thoughts and be original thinkers. The third point was, he would cultivate conviction on big subjects, such as God, love, right and immortality. Fourth, he said he would start out with the conviction of the value of his soul to God. The fifth point he presented was instilling quality into life—Put the best there is in you in your thoughts and deeds and if you follow a work be the best there is in that line. The sixth point was he would crowd one kind act into every day of his life. As an illustration he told of a man who if he had not done a good deed on one day would sit down and write out a check and send it where it would do some good before he went to bed that night. He compared kindness to oil poured on the cogs of the wheels of life, to the beautiful colors in the church windows and the tuft of green grass along the rugged road. As the seventh point he said he would cultivate two or three friends among older people. If he were a boy again he said the eighth thing he would do would be to make up his mind to read the Gospels through at least once a year. He said the boys should read to get the spirit on which all civilization is based. Ninth, he would spend a little time each day in the realm of the beautiful, a beautiful flower, book or poetry. He gave several selections from Browning. The last point was, he would give the flower of his manhood to Jesus Christ. He told the fellows of the Hi-Y not to wait until they were old men and give the remnants of themselves to Jesus Christ, but to give the best they have.

The fellows enjoyed Dr. Seeley's address and showed in it their applause.

Christmas Season In Full Sway

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Santa Claus was in possession of the key to New York and the Christmas season was officially under way.

There was no official welcoming tug sent down the bay, nor was there an address of welcome by Mayor Walker from the steps of the city hall. Santa's method of entry remained a secret, but anyone could tell that he had arrived.

At Times Square, the cross road of the world, today stood a living Christmas tree ablaze with 3,500 colored electric lights, and other gaily decked Christmas trees were making their appearance in the various squares of the city.

The Times Square tree, 35 feet high, was given to the city by the New York Electrical League. It is 27 years old and after the holidays will be planted on Riverside Drive.

The Hand-Made Flagstones

By LAURA PITT

(Copyright.)

DAISY RAYNOR was the kind of girl who did not like to follow in the wake of all other girls. Now that she was casting about in search of a profession or business in which she might be economically independent, she was trying to find a line that was more or less new.

"Every avenue I look down seems to be crowded or else it is one for which I have not been trained," she remarked to her mother.

"It is true, my dear, there are many girls and women in nearly every business and profession today," acquiesced her mother. But she added, consolingly, "I can't help feeling that, with your original vision you will stumble upon some unusual way to make a living. It isn't as if you were pressed for time. You have a home and a father and mother together with a small amount of money at your hand."

Daisy was quick to recognize her fortunate position as compared with many girls she had known but, nevertheless, she was anxious to get into her work, whatever it might be.

"I want to do something with my hands," she said. "Of that much I am certain."

One day, after a drive to a distant tearoom with a friend, she came home, glowing with enthusiasm.

"I have it," she cried. "Out of thin air it has come to me."

"What is it, dear?" asked her mother, quietly. She always wished her daughter could take things more easily instead of expending so much energy in enthusiasm. And yet, perhaps this was the secret of the girl's charm and success.

"Now don't laugh nor be discouraged, mother. It is an entirely original thing that I am going to do and I know it will prove a great success."

"But—what is it? I'm curious," insisted her mother.

"I'm going to make flagstones," stated Daisy.

Her mother looked at her, searching her face. "But—dear, flagstones are—born, not made," she argued.

"No—they're not, mother dear. Not mine. There is such a demand for flagstones following the building boom and the flare of the people for old-fashioned homes and gardens that there are not enough available flagstones. And they are expensive. My idea is to make a few forms of wood—you know how handy I am with tools—forms anywhere from ten by twenty inches to little ones six by ten, etc. I'll pour the cement into them. It is very simple. Then, I'll turn them about as they set until I get the irregular shapes I want and have hundreds of blocks, flat and irregular and just what is in demand for the pretty terraces and walks people are so crazy about. Then, another idea. I shall tint the cement as I make it and have antique-looking stones in moldy colors to correspond with flower borders. Positively, I can hardly wait to get my materials, arrange for an outdoor studio in the back yard, make my forms and get at it. It is just what I want, a combination of head and hand work. We have plenty of ground. I know lots of builders who will suggest my flagstones. I shall cultivate landscape gardeners and run attractive advertisements in the garden magazines—and there you are. Little Daisy Raynor, inventor of pastel-colored, hand-made flagstones, etc., etc.!"

Her mother was laughing now. "You are surely an original lassie, Daisy. But why not use your proper name, Marguerite, if you are going in for business?"

"No—I like Daisy—it suits me. I can just see the whole back yard turned into the busiest place you ever saw, mother. I can see it!"

Daisy's idea proved to be a good one. She found, after some experimenting, that she could make all sorts of odd shapes with a few forms and little expense at first.

On several occasions a successful landscape artist had come to her studio to plan, with her, some schemes that he wanted to get in building garden pathways. Her mother feared, as soon as she came upon them working together over a water-color painting, that a love affair might develop to end her daughter's promising career. Instinct told her that this was the type of man who would win Daisy's heart.

Joseph Dalton had laid out many famous gardens. He had planned beautiful nooks and corners in the grounds surrounding the houses of his clients in various suburban communities. But never until he had learned to know Daisy Raynor through contact in their relative professions did he feel the urge to build himself a lovely garden.

The desire grew within him and it was not too many months before he told Daisy all about it.

"But—my work—" she began.

"Couldn't we work and live and love together, dear?" he asked her. "Wouldn't the harmony brought about by complete understanding enrich us both? The time has long passed when a girl must give up her career because she marries. If she will but choose the right man—they can work the better."

And Daisy, after much protest, consented.

"Flagstones truly made adventure in my life, didn't they, mother?" she asked her parent when it had all been decided.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

After the preliminary snorting, squealing, spluttering and other noises of early evening had run themselves out, reception Wednesday night was excellent. Especially strong DX stations were WCCO, WOS, WOWO, WBBM, WLW, CNRM and WLS.

Either an increase in power or a freak caused WCRW, a Chicago station rated at 50 watts, to be received with strong volume.

KDKA and WOS seem to have come back permanently. In the absence of recent wave jumpers it was easy to separate WOS and CNRO. With WHAP, wave jumper, wrenching [illegible] and [illegible], the only thing that could have been heard from the three stations would have been a squeal.

WDBZ never working better. It was clear, easily tuned out and free from humming or thumping noises. The noises that came on the Rhinebeck broadcast Sunday afternoon were not made by any defect in the broadcasting. They were made right in the church by the carrying in, dragging around and slamming down of additional chairs to seat late comers. The microphone picked up the sounds, magnified them and passed them on.

Film Pictures of Smith Inaugural

Actual Inauguration Scene to Be Filmed During One Minute When Strong Lights Will Be Turned On—Show Pictures Same Night on Broadway.

Albany, Dec. 23.—For the first time in the history of this state, the actual inauguration of a governor will be filmed by motion picture companies. In times past the companies were forced to content themselves with a picture of whatever governor was inaugurated, seated at a desk in the executive chamber, and presumably signing the oath of office. Inadequate lighting facilities in the Assembly Chamber of the Capitol have heretofore precluded motion picture companies securing the actual inauguration. When Governor Smith is inaugurated on New Year's Day, there will be eight arc lights installed by four of the leading motion picture companies in New York city, furnishing the same sort of light that is used in the studios.

These lights will be turned on for only one minute, an interval sufficient, however, for the motion picture cameramen as well as those from the press, to secure the actual inauguration of the governor. Representatives from these companies were in Albany yesterday afternoon, arranging for a location of the lights and also for additional feed wires demanded. The cameramen are also working with considerable secrecy, scouting over Albany and securing "locations" in private homes, from which they can command long shots of the military parade on New Year's morning. One company is going so far as to send its cameramen back to New York by airplane immediately after the inauguration with the idea of showing the inaugural pictures on Broadway that night.

Congress Quits Work for Holidays

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP).—Members of Congress began their Christmas-New Year's vacation today, but like most folks who have regular jobs, their freedom was not without the usual price of work piling up to be done when the holidays end.

When the representatives go back to work, January 3, they will have plenty to do in committees and on the floor, while the senate's list of investigations was increased yesterday and a number of other matters were jammed in the offing waiting for consideration. Meanwhile, the leaders who are kept busy charting legislative courses are compelled to bear in mind that the 69th Congress goes out of existence March 4.

In the eleventh hour rush to get away for the holidays, the Senate made quick work of the Interior Department supply bill, the second regular appropriation measure it has passed, and the House hustled it into conference for adjustment of differences. But other developments of the day were portentious of more prolonged disputes. The House received from the Senate its version of the hotly contested rivers and harbors bill and from a committee the Swing-Johnson boulder canyon dam proposal, and the Senate, in receipt of the alien property adjustment bill passed by the House, heard the first thunders of the fight against it by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, and was given Comptroller General McCarl's report on the conduct of the alien property custodian's office.

SAVES HIS LIFE BY PARACHUTE LEAP

Cleveland, Dec. 23 (AP).—Warren D. Williams, pilot of a Cleveland-Chicago air mail plane, saved his life today by leaping from his plane, "flying blind" in a thick fog three miles south of Bowling Green, Ohio. The plane crashed a few seconds after Williams made his parachute leap.

The mail was recovered by a Bowling Green police officer and sent on to Chicago.

Sparks Caused Fire.

This morning at 10:55 o'clock the fire department was called by a still alarm for a fire in the roof of the gateman's house at the Ten Broeck avenue crossing of the West Shore railroad, caused by sparks. Quite a large hole was burned in the shingle roof before the fire was extinguished.

Dance at White Eagle Hall.

The Busy Bee Social and Athletic Club will hold a dance in White Eagle Hall on New Year's eve, December 31. A good time is promised and a cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Wynne Arrested.

Dennis J. Wynne of Saugerties was arrested Wednesday evening by the police for parking his car outside of another car on Wall street for nearly half an hour. He furnished bail for his appearance later in police court.

Resolutions.

The Junior League of Kingston regretfully record the death of Ellen Marjorie Drake, one of their charter members. For years one of the most tireless workers for others, her unselfishness and altruism were always an inspiration to her fellow members. Of later years when her health failed her and she was confined to her room, her courage in the face of illness and pain, her devotion to her friends and their interests, her generous pleasure in other's pastimes, have endeared her still more to those intimates of early days.

In her death the League loses a faithful worker, a fearless critic, a devoted friend, a dear companion.

Ask Promptly for Your Xmas Tree

The Christmas trees promised to the needy families of Kingston by the Downtown Business Men's Association will be given out Friday and all those who expect to receive a tree must apply at the stores having the evergreens on the sidewalk for present decorations.

The trees can only be had through application to the merchants, that is, they must be asked for at the store in which they have been placed, and if they have not been promised to an earlier applicant they will be cheerfully given to the petitioner.

There is a scarcity of Christmas trees in the city and several stores have been visited by people who offered a good price for the trees as most of the dealers are all sold out. However, the evergreens are not to be sold but donated to those who are financially handicapped and unable to purchase a tree.

Prompt application may be the means of securing a tree while the tardy applicant will be disappointed. The merchants request those wishing the trees to call them at once.

Farmer and Wife Victims of Killer

Springfield, Ohio, Dec. 23 (AP).—Charles Hallerman and his wife were killed at their farm home, 12 miles south of here, early today by an unknown assailant.

The bodies of the couple were found in the yard of their home by the dead man's brother, Leo, who lived with them.

Leo Hallerman said his brother and sister-in-law went to the yard when they heard a noise. Shortly after they left the house he said he heard Mrs. Hallerman scream: "Oh Sam, don't. Oh they're going to kill Charles." Then he said he heard shots.

Joyful Reunion Ends in Tragedy

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—The joyful reunion of a German immigrant husband and wife came to a tragic end today when Charles Stibbe was burned to death and his wife, Clara, was critically injured in a fire that swept the upper floors of three tenements on the upper east side.

The wife, who came to this country last Monday to join her husband, became panic stricken when she found herself trapped on the fifth floor of the building and leaped down an airshaft. She was removed to a hospital in an unconscious condition. The charred body of the husband was found on a bed.

Sixteen families escaped in safety due to the warning barks of two poodle dogs in the house.

MARLBOROUGH MAN KILLED WHEN HE TOUCHES WIRE

John Lepresto of Marlborough, an employee of the New York Trap Rock Company in the quarry at Verplanck, was electrocuted Monday when he touched a wire carrying 2,300 volts. He died on the way to the Peekskill hospital. Dr. Amos O. Squires, medical examiner, found a verdict of accidental death.

A letter found in Lepresto's pocket from his wife in Marlborough urged him to join his family for Christmas.

LESS THAN ONE HALF OF PENNSYLVANIANS VOTED

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 23 (AP).—Less than one half of the Pennsylvanians who qualified to vote in 1926, cast ballots at the November election, figures on enrollment and registration announced today by the state election bureau showed. There were 3,224,126 persons who registered and enrolled and 1,504,695 who voted.

Death Prevents Brothers' Reuion

Austin, Tex., Dec. 23 (AP).—An empty chair will represent one of three brothers who 12 years ago pledged each other they would hold a reunion here on this Christmas Day.

W. G. Eyers of Austin, Thomas L. Eyers of Saskatchewan, Canada, and John P. Eyers of Elmira, N. Y., met here on Christmas 12 years ago, and after their Christmas dinner agreed to repeat the reunion in a dozen years.

Brother Tom from Canada has arrived. But not Brother John. Instead, about the time he was scheduled to arrive, came a telegram announcing that he had died suddenly on the day he was to leave home. The two remaining brothers will carry on.

News of the Day In Wall Street

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Associated Gas and Electric system reports a further new high record in earnings for the year ended October 31, gross of $28,325,873 showing an increase of $12,425,460 over the previous year. Net earnings of $12,611,957 were $6,541,859 larger.

November production of lead by the principal countries of the world which furnished about 85 per cent of the total in 1925, amounted to 125,150 short tons against 127,628 the month before. The output for the eleven months this year was 1,332,947 tons.

Net profit of Transcontinental Oil Company for the eleven months of 1926 amounted to $2,526,816 compared with $792,580 for the full year 1925.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Speculators for the advance assumed control of the price movement in today's stock market, centering their activities in Atchison, which crossed 170 to a new record high, and the motor shares. The rally was conducted in the face of another advance in call money to six per cent which followed the heavy calling of loans in order to meet the unusually heavy demands for Christmas currency.

Despite frequent denials that any special dividend action in Atchison was under consideration, the stock was accumulated by brokers who look for an extra distribution at the January meeting of directors. Other rails were quiet but steady, the decline in car loadings compared with the same week last year, and the relatively poor November reports of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific having a tendency to restrict trading.

Texas and Pacific Land Trust, which fluctuated between 1,700 and 1,800 yesterday, was marked up today to $2,040 a share the highest price ever recorded. Heavy trading also took place in Transcontinental Oil following the publication of a splendid earnings statement for the first 11 months of the year. Atlantic Refining advanced 3 points and other oils held firm despite recent increases in crude production.

Heavy accumulation of the motors, particularly Nash and Hudson, was accompanied by unconfirmed merger rumors. General Motors also started upward after a period of comparative inactivity. On the other hand, Hayes Wheel sank to a new low for the year at 17⅛.

Among the specialties, Jewel Tea stood out by jumping over five points to a new peak at 56½. Baldwin, Remington Typewriter and International Telephone also scored substantial gains.

Our Shining Saucepans

In the descriptions of old-time kitchens, met within fiction and folk stories, there is always a "row of shining pans" reflecting the rosy, beaming face of the cook: Generally these are copper saucepans, and their reddish glow fills those of us who love the gleam of copper with a pang of yearning. But copper is not a practicable material for the less sturdy housewives of today. It is very soft and must be lined with a heavy coating of some better-wearing metal, which also will not affect food chemically as copper is said to do. So we must content ourselves with snowy porcelain or silvery aluminum.

These present-day utensils, however, can be kept a "shining row" if they are polished and cared for as assiduously as the old-time housekeepers cared for their copper. Aluminum especially has its own particular cleansers and metallic sponges, and by following the instructions given with these polishes one may always have clear silver-gray saucepans, tea-kettle, double boilers, and cooking spoons.

A very efficient housekeeper told me recently that one should not scour thin aluminum saucepans too vigorously or too often. Very good little saucepans can be secured now for ten cents each, but they must be handled gently, as the handles bend easily and too hard rubbing will soon wear them through. If a metallic sponge is used on them, it should be wielded very sketchily. Never use ammonia or washing soda on an aluminum utensil.

Steel and iron skillets, on the contrary, may be kept smoothly clean by boiling a half-teaspoon of washing soda in them. Every trace of grease is dissolved and vanishes down the sink; and this bath of boiling soda-water is the best thing in the world for the drain pipe of the sink as well.

Tin is totally out of it, as a cooking container. It blackens quickly, and gets out of shape. Gray enamel or granite are within reach now of the slimmest purse, and these materials are easily cleaned, so that our "shining row" may be maintained by a little daily care.

McCarthy Shot By Unknown Man

Troy, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP).—George H. McCarthy, Jr., secretary of the Stanton Brewing and Malting Company, was shot by an unknown assailant near his home early today.

Four of the bullets took effect, one lodging in McCarthy's head. He was taken into his home where his condition was said to be serious.

The man emerged from an alley as McCarthy came along. He fired without warning.

Attracted by the shots, neighbors carried McCarthy into his home. He told police his assailant said nothing but drew a revolver from his pocket and fired. He said the man came from an alley two doors from the McCarthy home. The victim described him as being about six feet tall and weighing 190 pounds. He wore a sheepskin coat, a cap and tortoise shell glasses. Police said they traced him to Union Station, where he was seen reading a time table for New York city.

The property of the Stanton company had been used for storage for several years.

Xmas Service At Redeemer

The special Christmas service at The Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, corner Wurts and Rogers streets, will begin Christmas Eve at 7 o'clock. The children of the Sunday school will proceed to the church where a service of Divine worship will be held. Immediately following the Sunday school Christmas festival will be held in the Sunday school rooms. This part of the celebration will consist of exercises and pageants of the Christmas story and carols of the Sunday school. The Christmas gifts will be distributed at this service.

The Christmas day service will be held at seven o'clock in the morning. The entire congregation is urged to be present and all strangers are cordially welcomed. The music, hymns, sermon and lessons will reflect the great Christmas story.

Starves Rather Than Tell Family

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Because she did not want her family's Christmas spoiled, Gertrude Wise, 19, of Pottsville, Pa., preferred to starve rather than notify them of her plight. She was found early today leaning against a gaily decorated shop window, almost too weak from hunger to stand.

Today she lay in Harlem Hospital, fighting for her life.

She was taken to a police station but was too weak to swallow soup offered her. Before being carried to the hospital she pleaded with officers not to notify her family.

Mother Overjoyed.

Pittsville, Pa., Dec. 23 (AP).—Gertrude Wise, found starving on the streets in New York city, had been missing from her home for several months. She had been in a hospital here for treatment of a nervous trouble. Her mother, Mrs. Bessie M. Wise, was overjoyed to learn that she had been found alive.

Nye's First and Last Job as Paper Hanger

I decided to economize in the matter of paper-hanging, thinking that I would save the paper hanger's bill and put the money into preferred trotting stock. So I read a household hint, which stated how one should make and apply paste to wall paper, how to apply the paper, and all that. The paste was made by uniting flour, water and glue in such a way as to secure the paper to the wall and yet leave it smooth. First the walls had to be "sized." However, I took a tape measure and sized the walls.

Next I began to cook the paste in a large milk pan. It looked very repulsive, but it looked so much better than it smelled that I did not mind. Then I put about 5 cents' worth of it on one roll of paper and got up on the chair to begin. My idea was to apply it to the wall mostly, but the chair tipped, and so I papered the piano and my wife on the way down. My wife gasped for breath, and then she laughed at me. That is the reason I took another end of the paper and repapered her face. I cannot bear to have anyone laugh at me when I am unhappy.—From "Bill Nye, His Own Life Story," by Frank Wilson Nye.

Hopeless!

An airplane flew over an Irish asylum, much to the consternation of the inmates. Next day two of the latter were discussing the strange machine. One said:

"Do you know, I dreamt last night I made one of those contrivances and flew to America in 60 minutes?"

"That's strange," said the other "for I had a similar dream, only I went to Melbourne in 60 seconds."

"How did you go?"

"Right through the earth."

"Look here, my friend," said the other, "you're not a lunatic—you're a blithering idiot, that's what you are."

Hard to Place Derivation

The derivation of the word "cafeteria" is obscure. It comes from the same root as the French word "cafe," which means "coffee," but is used to mean "restaurant." The Italian word, "caffettiere" is applied to a coffee pot, a coffee shop or the proprietor of such a shop. The form "cafeteria" was first applied to a self-service cafe in Chicago by a man from New Mexico, so it is said, although this form of restaurant originated in Los Angeles in 1905, when Miss Helen S. Mosher made the experiment.

Kingston Lineup Still in the Air

Manager Morgenweck Is Busy Securing Players for Game With Celtics Christmas—Lineup of Locals Not Known.

Manager Morgenweck of the King-Pats is busier than a flock of cross-word puzzle enthusiasts striving to build up a team that will be strong enough for the Celtics quintet when they reach here on Christmas Day. The local manager says that events this season have been the most disappointing of any period during his long affiliation with the court game.

The King-Pats were an outstanding quintet at the opening of the season but the clarion call of higher money penetrated the National League when issued from the American organization and the Morgenweckers did not deliberate before answering it, leaving the local team in rather poor shape.

Artus, Borgman and Riconda joined the forces of the American League and Knoblauch and Grimsted proved unsatisfactory to the local manager, thus the disintegrating of the King-Pat organisation. Husta is the only member of the original King-Pat lineup that is now representing Kingston.

Maurice Tome was annexed by Morgie and although he is lacking some of his old time speed he has proven a good center. Willie McElwain can be counted on when the Shamrock five plays here on Christmas. Charley Powers may also wear a Kingston uniform.

The admission as announced before will be slightly raised because of the higher guarantee money demanded by the world-famous team. The tickets for the game will also admit the bearers to the dancing which will be held in the armory Christmas night.

Maloney Won In Every Round

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—Jimmy Maloney of Boston was firmly established today as a formidable heavyweight title contender, taking rank with Jack Delaney, Jack Sharkey and Jack Dempsey in the race for a fight next year with Gene Tunney.

Surviving his third test in Tex Rickard's elimination tournament last night, Maloney hammered out a decisive 10 round victory over Harry Persson of Sweden with an impressive display of skillful boxing and punching power. At the same time, the hopes of the giant Nebraskan, Monte Munn, went tumbling in a stunning and unexpected defeat at the hands of a midwestern rival, Knute Hansen of Racine, Wis.

After a throng of 15,000 had seen Munn pummeled for ten rounds by the sharp hitting Hansen, Maloney stepped into the battle arena and won every round from the stout hearted Persson. The final bell apparently saved the latter from a knockout. Pitching blindly around the ring under a shower of blows, Persson almost fell through the ropes before the gong terminated the contest.

Shoos Pigeons Out of Church After 80 Years

Milwaukee, Wis.—The age-old problem of ousting tenants without hurting their feelings is facing Rev. Arthur H. Lord and the vestrymen of St. James' Episcopal church, because the time has arrived, they believe, to ask pigeons to move from the steeple of the church where they and their ancestors have lived for 80 years.

Two months ago a steeple-cleaning expedition was carried on by Otto Gehrke, sexton, and three men. They took 108 bags or nearly three tons of debris from the floor of the tower. It was seven years since a similar job had been performed, according to Gehrke and the debris included skeletons of dead pigeons.

Reverend Lord wishes they would find new homes, but says they may use the steeple on cold days.

Clash of Giants Good for Gate

If 70,000 persons turn out again to watch "Red" Grange play in Los Angeles, it will be due to the fact that Grange is playing against "Brick" Muller and not because the former Illinois halfback is still an irresistible magnet.

The proposed contest between teams centered about Grange and Mueller will afford coast fans an opportunity to compare the two famous red-heads. Grange and Muller are expected to meet in January.

BOBBY JONES MAY CHANGE HIS MIND

Thought Likely He Will Go to England to Defend Title.

It is likely that Bobby Jones will change his mind concerning the 1927 British open championship. The fact that the meeting is to be held on the old course of St. Andrews may cause Bobby to give way to one of those impulses of which he is capable Bobby says many of the American courses can be played correctly, but at St. Andrews the course is broad and open, and the rough is distant, and the fairways confront you in almost every direction. The greens are huge.

And with all that and with almost all the visible to shoot into, you may plume yourself on any round of 72 to 75, which falls to your fortune there. From tee after tee you are offered about all the real estate you can cover for your drive. But you would better place that drive with some thought and exactness or your second shot will be a terror.

"The fourteenth hole at St. Andrews, for instance, I think perhaps the finest on the course, may be played four different ways, all correct and widely at variance, according to the wind. And the wind is a worthy foe. It is just as likely to oppose you all the way out and turn as you turn and battle you all the way back. Or it may follow you around the entire horseshoe. You must use something beside shots and clubs playing at St. Andrews. I can learn more golf in a week on that course than in a year on many a sterling championship test in America."

Bobby, therefore, with the prospect of defending his title at St. Andrews, may show himself "human" enough to return and take his chances there.

Four Pitchers Are Tied in the World's Series

Only four pitchers have gone through world's series games without suffering defeat. They are Herb Pennock and Babe Ruth of the Yankees. "Iron Man" Jack Coombs of the Athletics and Babe Adams of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Coombs has the best record of the four, as he pitched five world's series games—1910 against the Cubs and 1911 against the Giants—and won them all.

The slender Pennock has pitched in four world's series games without meeting defeat. In the recent world's series against the Cardinals the southpaw twice turned back Rogers Hornsby and his National league champions.

Ruth and Adams are tied for third honors. Each has won three games and lost none. Ruth, however, holds the record for scoreless world's series innings. The Babe has a record of twenty-nine innings without allowing a run.

Christy Mathewson worked in more world's series games than any other big league pitcher. He appeared in ten and won and lost the same number. His feat of pitching three straight shutouts against the Athletics in the 1905 series has never been equaled

Mordecai Brown won five and lost four.

Joe Bush is credited with three victories and charged with five defeats.

Art Nehf won four and lost the same number.

Padded Mit Game

The padded-mitt game, already boasting Monte Munn of Nebraska, Sully Montgomery of Centre, and other athletes among the heavyweights, seems likely to find the name of Earl Britton, famous running mate of Red Grange at Illinois, added to the roll. Britton has asked Promoter Humbert Fugazy for a bout in New York. "T. N. T." Lassman, giant tackle of New York university Violets, intends to enter the ring.

Sunday School League Results

Three interesting contests were played in the Sunday School League at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night. The opening game was the feature event of the evening and was between the Redeemers, who hold the lead in the league and the First Dutch. Dittus, Fox and Messinger of the Redeemers got a fine start and before the Dutch boys knew what it was all about, their opponents were secured in the lead. Dittus of the Redeemers was the high point getter for his team, corralling 17 markers. Irwin did the best work for the First Dutch by contributing 15 points to their score, which at the end of the contest was 41 to 21.

Port Ewen Wins.

The Comforter five were unable to stop the Port Ewen boys when they generated a whirlwind pace during the contest on the Y court and as the result the boys from over-the-bridge obtained the favorable portion of the 39 to 7 score Torrens did the scintillating for the Port Ewen quintet and managed to drop the ball through the hoops for 19 iron men. Van Etten was the next best worker with 10 markers.

Clintons Win Another.

The Clinton Avenue team secured a striking lead in the early stages of their contest with the Congregational five, which ended 41 to 21, the latter quintet finding it superbly difficult to hold a perpendicular position on the floor and a goodly part of the time were in a reclining attitude. Niles was the capital point gatherer for the Methodists, adding 25 markers to the score. Cassell corralled eight for the Congregationals.

Sport Briefs Of All Sorts

(By The Associated Press)

Jack Dempsey is balking at participation in the semi-final round of Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination tournament. According to his eastern business representative, Leonard D. Sacks, the dethroned champion declines to meet "second and third raters" and will consent only to a fight with Gene Tunney.

The Amateur Athletic Union is puzzled over a radiogram from Edwin Wide, famous Swedish runner, that he cannot race in reply to an invitation to compete in a meet on January 8, but officials are unable to find any regulation which would exclude him from American tracks.

Jack Delaney is planning a tour which may take him as far west as the Pacific coast. The light-heavyweight champion whose activities in New York have been limited by his split with Tex Rickard, expected to engage in his first match at Chicago next month.

WHAT HAPPENED IN THE ROPED ARENA LAST NIGHT.

(By the Associated Press.)

New York—Jimmy Maloney, Boston, beat Harry Persson of Sweden, ten rounds. Martin Burke, New Orleans, beat Otto Von Porat of Norway on a technical knockout, 8 rounds Harry Fay, Louisville, knocked out Mel French, East Palestine, Ohio. George La Rocco, New York knocked out Dan McGovern, New York, one round

Denver—Roscoe Hall, University of Iowa, beat Peewee Jensen, Denver, 4 rounds.

NEW YORK RANGER TEAM CRIPPLED

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—The first brush of the season between leading sectional rivals of the National Hockey League tonight will send a crippled New York Ranger team against the Ottawa Senators on the home ring of the Canadian team

Prior to their departure for Ottawa, the Rangers revealed that Ching Johnson, star defense player had suffered a broken collarbone in a fall here Tuesday night during the Ranger-Pittsburgh contest. Johnson is expected to be out of the lineup at least three weeks and probably will be replaced tonight by Stan Brown, formerly defense man of the Soo Greyhounds, winners of the Allan Cup.

The lead of the Rangers in the American division of the race was strengthened last night by the defeat of the Chicago Black Hawks, who lost a 3-1 verdict to the Montreal Canadians

22 Million Motor Vehicles in U. S.

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Motor vehicles in use in the United States now exceed 22,000,000, or one to every five persons, it is shown by annual registration figures today in the magazine Motor.

Passenger and commercial cars total 22,423,457, a gain over 1925 of 2,254,000, or 11.2 per cent. While the gain is 2.7 per cent less than the gain of 1925, over 1924, this is due to the fact that an unprecedently large number of vehicles were taken out of service, the magazine says.

Commercial vehicles now number 2,576,781, a gain over the preceding year of 421,688, or 17.1 per cent. Passenger automobiles number 19,465,676, an increase of 1,831,793, or 10.3 per cent over the previous year.

New York state retains its leadership with 1,818,765, a gain of 193,000. It now has about half as many motor vehicles as all the rest of the world aside from the United States.

Boy Helped Engineers

Theodore G. Hulett, who supervised the construction of the first suspension bridge across Niagara, relates that a premium of $10 was offered to the first boy who should successfully fly over the gorge his kite string and fasten its ends to a tree on either side. A boy named Homan Walsh, a resident of Lincoln, Neb., was successful. The following day a stronger line was drawn over by the kite string and then a rope of sufficient strength to haul over the iron cable. By means of this rope the iron cable was carried across and its ends secured to the solid rock. It crossed the gorge five miles above Lewiston.

1 DAY LEFT TO SPEND HIS CASH FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Washington—There will be three Christmas trees in the White House, one each in the red, green and blue rooms. Mrs. Coolidge and John will decorate them. The President is to light a community tree near the White House.

New York—From the sheriff's jury a check for $100 has been sent to each of 50 institutions for Christmas. Among the members of the Jury are John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Otto H. Hahn, Chauncey M. Depew, W. A. Harriman and F. W. Vanderbilt.

London—"G. B. S." is interpreted by some commentators to mean G. B. Scrooge, since George Bernard Shaw has denounced Christmas as an opportunity for landlords to make money.

New York—Better than a president's proclamation urging parents to take children to church Christmas, in the opinion of Secretary Sanders, are the frequent public addresses in which Mr. Coolidge has laid great stress upon the proper religious education of young people and the importance religion has played in the life of our country. Mr. Sanders has replied to a suggestion by Rabbi E. Jerome M. Lawn.

Jerusalem—Telephone operators here can understand numbers in eleven languages.

Haverstraw, N. Y.—Twelve needy city employes are shooting rabbits for the Christmas dinner. A political squabble and litigation over who is mayor are holding up the pay checks. The eight police and everybody else on the payroll are spending most of their time hunting.

London—Any old cigarette will do for a present to Prince of Wales. But he is meticulous about cigars. He has them made to order.

New York—Lady Bountiful sometimes needs expert advice. A charity worker, who last year found that one family had received 13 Christmas baskets and sold them to the neighbors, suggests that some givers prefer to deal with interesting ragged persons rather than deserving cases.

Why He Fled

The sorry looking man was charged with burglary and malicious assault. The victim was in the witness box.

"You say you called to see Miss Billings and that you were in the sitting room with her at the time the burglary was committed?" asked the judge.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness.

"Then how," continued the judge, "did it happen that when the prisoner dashed into the room and assaulted you, you leaped through an open window without attempting to defend the young lady or even summon aid?"

"I thought it was her father, sir."

Earliest English Novel

"Miss Betsy Thoughtless," by Mrs. Haywood, published in 1751, is generally regarded as the first really domestic novel in the English language. It is thought to have been the model for Miss Burney's "Evelina."

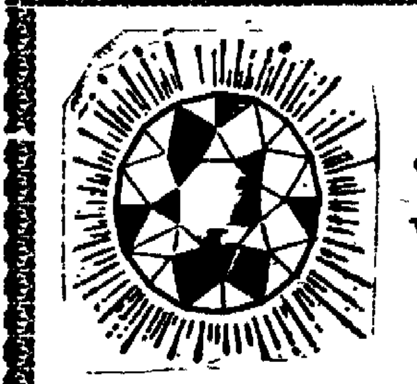
Rajah Raboid

He Tells Your Past, Present and Future.



Do you speak of

Jagers and Wesseltons

or just "diamonds".

If you know whether Jager diamonds are finer than Cape diamonds, Wesseltons finer than Premiers, if you can distinguish blue-white from yellow or light brown, if you judge the value of a diamond by its proportion of width to depth—if, in other words, you are a true connoisseur of diamonds, you do not need our help in your choice of these fine jewels.

But if you are not a connoisseur, you will want to be guided in your selection of diamond jewelry by men who have mastered these matters of color, proportion and value. You will feel secure only in a store whose men not only know all there is to know about the diamonds you choose, but who will tell you everything frankly while you choose.

Those people who are not connoisseurs come to see us for honest guidance in their selection of fine diamonds.

And those people who are connoisseurs come to us for the fineness of the jewels themselves.

Throughout the many years of our business history we have earned and we now enjoy a reputation for selling merchandise of the highest character. Some people may confuse "HIGH QUALITY" with "HIGH PRICES" so we want to make it quite clear that Oppenheimer's is a "Store for Everybody"—for those who appreciate WORTH WHILE merchandise at reasonable prices.

We cordially invite you to visit our store—while we appreciate purchases we also welcome visitors—we want you to become familiar with our large and varied stock.
